Ichord Takes Himself Out Of Race For Governor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo, today formally took himself out of the 1972 Democratic race for governor of Missouri.

He said at a news conference, "I have come here to announce to you that I will not become a candidate for governor of Missouri, but will file for re-election to the U.S. House of Representatives."

He said in a brief statement that "the 1972 Democratic gubernatorial primary campaign is certainly a very unusual and complicated political race. Several candidates who are well known statewide have either already filed for the nomination or announced their intentions to file for the office of governor on the Democratic ticket.

"This must be viewed as somewhat of an unorthodox situation in view of the fact that the filing deadline is still some seven months away and the campaign is already in high gear."

Ichord appeared pleased to have reached a decision on his political future.

He strode into the press conference room with a smile on his face. He joked with newsmen he has known over the years and shook hands heartily.

Along with his statement he handed out a sheet he said contained quotes from unsolicited letters he received from fellow Missourians. Generally they said he would make a good governor but he was needed more in Congress.

He called today's news conference only 24 hours ahead of time. It was apparent at once that he intended to get out of the race for governor, formalizing what already had become a poorly kept secret.

Ichord told the crowded news conference he had discovered "a tremendous amount of support" for him in his travels about the state but reached his decision not to run because "I could not identify sufficient support to justify my becoming a candidate."

He said he was confident he could have raised enough money to "finance a campaign within the spirit of the law"—or about $450,000. He said he was sure that could have been done.

When Gary Bixle, a resident of the Kay Apartments on Kathleen street, left work and returned home at 5 a.m. today, he noticed that something was not right. Bixle smelled what he described as "paper burning," and decided to notify fire officials.

KHRUSCHEV FORGOT TO BURY US

Nikita Sergeyevitch Khrushchev, the man who said of the United States, "We will bury you," died on September 11 without having been able to carry out his threat. The former Soviet Premier, who was ousted because he backed down in the Cuban missile crisis, died without being sure of a burial himself.

He had lived in the hideous condition of an "unperson" since 1964, and his funeral became a problem for the present leaders. They finally decided to give him a grave in Moscow where lie "Soviet heroes, second class." This was felt to be the reasonable thing all around.

The cunning peasant rose from the ashes of millions of others, many of whom he had sent to their death. As a top henchman and chief executioner for Stalin, he achieved the greatest possible feat, he survived. Just before he was dismissed as Premier, he was informed by an American correspondent that former President Herbert Hoover has just died. Khrushchev tartly remarked: "So what else is new?"

It was his callous, brusk and often vile speech that lost Khrushchev the respect of nearly all the foreigners who knew him. Despite his snide remark, it was through Herbert Hoover that the United States distributed food in the Soviet Union in the 1920's when famine conditions prevailed in large areas. Khrushchev may well have been one of those millions whose lives were saved.

Khrushchev lived by his wits all of his life. He visited the United States September 15-27, 1959, and traveled across the country, ending with a visit to Camp David, where a new spirit of Soviet-American friendship was supposed to have developed. Khrushchev welched on his agreement to let President Eisenhower visit Russia. The shooting down of one of our U-2 planes in May, 1960, which had been flying over Russia for two years, was a convenient excuse to end the "spirit of Camp David" and bar the Eisenhower visit.

The only action during Khrushchev's Communist Party leadership that qualified him as a statesman was his denunciation of Stalin as a murderer, an incompetent in military affairs and an unprincipled scoundrel who had brought immeasurable grief upon his countrymen. For this Khrushchev was denounced as a brazen opportunist. But he survived the attacks in 1956 to become Premier in 1958.

He brought on the first nuclear showdown in history, between the USSR and the USA, in 1962. He declared that the Monroe Doctrine was dead and he was right: he killed it by taking control of Cuba.

Khrushchev was a dangerous man. He once threatened to raze the Acropolis in Athens with atomic bombs. He personally presided over the shelling of Budapest in 1956. Despite his denunciation of Stalin, he followed in Stalin's footsteps in foreign affairs by furthering Soviet imperialism. He was deposed because his methods were crude or ineffective, not because they were out of line with present Soviet purposes.

True to its liberal image, American radio and TV interviewed the family whose farm Khrushchev had visited in the Midwest. What the family did not seem to realize is that Khrushchev would have taken their farm away from them and sent them packing to Siberia.

Five Constitutional Amendments are being submitted to the voters in a special election October 5th. Four of the amendments could be classed as not controversial. One, however, will spark heated debate. Amendment number four gives the legislature power to pass laws authorizing pari-mutuel wagering on horse racing. This constitutional amendment does not propose regulation of racing, determine ownership of racing operations or establish revenue provision for pari-mutuel betting. It will be up to the legislature to adopt laws imposing all such control. Both the opponents and proponents are organized. This one will likely attract the most interest of the five issues. Proponents feel pari-mutuel betting could provide a new source of revenue for Missouri at a time when revenues are badly needed. They contend Missourians presently will go to Illinois, Arkansas and Nebraska to spend their racing dollars and these dollars should be kept in Missouri. Further, they feel individuals should have entertainment freedom of choice. No one would be forced to attend the horse races or bet. Finally, they claim it is impossible for the state government to legislate the morals of its citizens. Of course, we're in favor of amendment number four. We don't ask anybody else to vote for it, we don't ask anybody else to vote against it, but we don't see that it will add any to the rag-tagged, bob-tails that hangs around the race tracks than they do at present, since the tracks over in East St. Louis all the big-shots there all live in St. Louis anyway.

NIXON AND HIROHITO

President Nixon must by now be regarded by the Japanese as an unpredictable schizophrenic. As the generous Dr. Jekyll, he cleared the way for the reversion of Okinawa. But more recently Nixon has been cast in the role of Mr. Hyde in Japanese newspapers. His decision to visit China smashed the entire orientation of Japan's foreign policy. The surcharge on imports and monetary pressure on the yen forced similarly unwelcome changes in Japan's commercial policies. The fact that both actions were taken with little advance warning and no consultation was deeply damaging to the Japanese necessity of maintaining "face."

Dr. Jekyll reappeared when President Nixon announced that he would meet with Emperor Hirohito when the Japanese monarch touches down in Alaska on Sunday, Sept. 26, enroute to a European tour. The meeting is fated to be almost totally ceremonial. Hirohito, under the Japanese Constitution of 1946, is merely "the symbol of the state ... deriving his position from the will of the people." But symbols and ceremony are as important to the Japanese mind as reality and brass tacks are to a Westerner.

At 69, the shy and mild-mannered Hirohito also represents something of a dual personality in Western eyes. On one hand he is the quite marine biologist who putters in his laboratory at the new palace in Tokyo. On the other, he is the former mighty Emperor of a people who revered him as a god called Tenno, or "Heavenly Ruler." In a wartime bunker, Hirohito overcame his retiring nature and centuries of protocol when he commanded the Japanese cabinet to end the war and sue for peace. Now a controversial book -- Japan's Imperial Conspiracy by David Bergamini-- charges that far from being a passive figurehead, Hirohito was actually a rabid advocate of military expansion in the 1920s and 1930s.

History, the personalities involved and even the site of the meeting -- Anchorage -- combine to lend an air of improbability to this exercise in breach-healing. But the formal exchange of courtesies between Nixon and Hirohito may go a long way toward improving the mood of Japanese-American relations. In the hard economic and foreign policy bargaining that lies ahead in Washington and Tokyo, a better mood is the first requirement for success.

NEW YORK — You 're getting middle-aged if —

You can think of more people you'd like to leave out of a will than put in it.

Every dawning when you awake you lie in bed for 15 full minutes trying to think of a good worthwhile reason for getting up and facing life. There is none. Habit is all that gets you up.

You decide it is high time you taught your wife how to put up the storm windows herself. After all, that's what she'd have to do if something ever happened to you.

One fine morning you study your face in the mirror and your heart leaps with horror as you detect a hair growing in your ear. The color of the hair is gray.

You quit sending away box tops because you can't think of anything you really want back.

For everything that makes you smile there are two that make you frown and five that make you yawn.

Every personal letter you write contains some comment on the current state of the weather, and the comment is rarely laudatory.

When you get a cold, it hangs on two days longer than it used to—and takes one more bottle of bourbon to cure.

You suspect that not one but three of your fellow workers at the office are secretly trying to get your job, and now and then you get a little melancholy over the fact that this world holds such treachery.

It is difficult to find anyone to have a discussion with, because they are either too old and opinionated or too young and callow to take seriously.

Even with the help of your bifocals it becomes increasingly difficult to read the fine print on medicine bottle labels.

On rainy days you like to review your life insurance policy and try to figure whether, in the eventuality of your demise, it would provide for your wife until she could find another husband half the man you are.

Generally speaking, you feel better in the autumn than in the spring and, specifically speaking, you can't remember the last time you felt really good all over.

You haven't bothered to estimate the number of days you still have left to work before you get a pension, but you can make a pretty close guess on the number of months.

Yep, there's no doubt about it—you're really middle-aged. But you don't have to stay middle-aged.

You can always outgrow ...

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS ON OCTOBER 5 BALLOT

Five Constitutional Amendments are being submitted to the voters in a special election October 5. Four of the amendments could be classed as not controverial. One, however, will spark heated debate.

Amendment No. 4 gives the legislature power to pass laws authorizing pari- mutuel wagering on horse racing. This constitutional amendment does not propose regulations for racing, determine ownership of racing operations or establish revenue provisions for pari-mutuel betting. It will be up to the legislature to adopt laws imposing all such controls.

Both the opponents and proponents are organized. This one will likely attract the most interest of the five issues.

Proponents feel pari-mutuel betting could provide a new source of revenue for Missouri at a time when revenues are badly needed. They contend Missourians presently go to Illinois, Arkansas and Nebraska to spend their racing dollars and those dollars should be kept in Missouri. Further, they feel individuals should have entertainment freedom of choice. No one would be forced to attend horse races or to bet. Finally, they claim it is impossible for state government to legislate the morals of its citizens.

Opponents of the amendment are quick to indicate people who can't afford to gamble are the ones most attracted to it. These people, it is claimed, feel they can risk what little they have hoping to win large sums of money in return. Opponents further contend pari-mutuel betting would attract an undesirable element to the state and the amount of revenue would be small in conparison to the needs of state government. Finally, they anticipate the cost of enforcement will be an unrealized expense that will nibble away at the revenues gained from pari-mutuel betting on horse races.

Amendment No. 1 would lower from 10,000 to 5,000 the population necessary for a city to adopt a charter form of government and it expands the home rule power of these charter cities. Presently charter cities are permitted to enact ordinances only as expressly permitted by state laws. This proposal would allow cities with charter forms of government to adopt any ordinances not prohibited by the State Constitution. This again illustrates how the state's 1945 constitution can be modernized to meet existing problems.

Adoption of this amendment would ease the burden on the general Assembly as in the past many bills were introduced giving additional powers to cities, thus making the General Assembly sort of a super city council. Opponents have not yet presented their arguments.

Amendment No. 2 permitting only Greene and Clay Counties to retain their present property tax rate is important only to these two areas.

Clay and Greene Counties emphasize the need to retain their existing tax rate of 50 cents rather than having it decrease to 35 cents as will be the case since these counties now have an assessed valuation of $300 million.

Proponents point our these counties are experienceing tremendous growth and will be handicapped in providing needed services if their tax rate drops to the lower figure. There has been no expressed opposition.

Amendment No. 3 is a $150 million bond issue for water pollution control projects. This represents 25 per cent of a $600 million program spread over the next seven to ten years to provide secondary sewerage treatment facilities for all cities and tertiary treatment for some cities. Fifty-five per cent of the $600 million will come from federal funds and 20 per cent will come from local funds.

Proponents state the bond issue will augment long-range planning for cities better than the present system of funding out of current revenues. Cities and sewer districts will know that this money is available on a continuing basis and will be free to plan thier expenditures accordingly.

Opposition may develop over the interest costs of bond issues. Opponents will prefer funding the program out of current revenues. However, ecology is such a sensitive issue that serious opposition to this program may fail to materialize.

Amendment No. 5 clarifies a provision of the state's constitution, which has been creating problems since its adoption, for the Missouri Personnel Division. Regardless how long a person has lived in Missouri, he is not eligible for veterans' preference under the merit system unless he was a citizen of the state at the time he was inducted into the service. This amendment makes all veterans eligible for preferential treatment regardless of their state citizenship when they went into the service. No opposition is expected to this amendment.

A FOR or AGAINST vote on each of the amendments is registered by placing an X in the square opposite the viter's choice.

CANADIAN CAPER
Our friends and neighbors to the north, the Canadians, must be disappointed. Premier Aleksei N. Kosgin of the Soviet Union will pay a visit in October and there will be no ping pong. It will be the first visit of a Chief of State of the U.S.S.R. to Canada and it will ignore the new protocol of diplomacy, ping pong, an honorable game that President Nixon used to "open the door" to Red China. Henry Kissinger, the durable diplomat who bounced into Peking in the wake of a ping pong ball, probably set the stage for the visit of the Russian premier who is trying to prove to the world, especially the Chinese, that he can come to the North American continent and do business with the partners of the United States.

But the Canadians had better have their guards up. Russian diplomats have visited other countries, such as Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and East Germany. There was no ping pong involved there, either, but rockets, armored units and slavery followed in the wake. Such a state of affairs doesn't seem likely since Canada adjoins us physically. But then the prospects of Soviet domination didn't seem likely in Cuba either when an "agrarian reformer" named Castro began dealing out his brand of "democracy."

The Canadians have always been a staunch people, as the Germans who fought them in the port of Dieppe will attest, but their government has grown more socialistic and has extended further the hand of friendship to communist butchers, especially the Chinese communists. If they want a lesson from history, all they have to do is look at what our diplomatic recognition of Russia led in 1933. Now the stories of the Kosygin trip to Canada center on speculation of arms control talks. The Canadians might also think of our present predicament on arms control. The Russians have us bested in inter-continental ballistics missiles. With or without ping pong, dealing with the communist is deadly business.

Inside Labor

CONSTRUCTION CHIEF'S
MUSCLE:
World's highest paid labor leader pressuring courts, Congress to free him from prison

NEWARK, N. J.: - This is the saga of the world's highest paid labor leader – a surly, defiant man, always impatiently annoyed when the prosecutors and courts got in the way of his yachting pleasure. A man of such intrigue that his full exposure and list of associates would shake many a graveyard, political and actual, including some recently buried.

He is of the type more powerful than the embattled national chiefs in Washington. Or he was. For now he is in the Danbury Federal Prison seeking shortening of his 10 year sentence on grounds of illness, namely, diabetes.

He is Peter Weber by name, and in the past two fiscal years' record of his all-powerful Operating Engineers Local 825 here, drew an average of $173,000 annually.

Being a chap of horizons as wide as the mouth of his black bag, Weber, without whose permission one really couldn't construct, build or use heavy machinery in 11 Eastern states ranging from Maine to Buffalo, N. Y., to Delaware, drew two salaries. One of being 8th vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL-CIO) and one for the post of "president-business agent" of the 8,000-member Local 825.

His national salary and expenses and allowances totaled anywhere from $25,622.19 to $28,600. His local salary came to $80,000 annually with allowances and expenses which one recent year totaled some $85,000. Thus the federals reckon he averaged $173,000 annually over the past few years.

Also, he was president of the national Operating Engineers Union Northeast Conference of 11 states, for the moment the record is not clear what that brought him.

Apparently, these moneys were not enough to keep him and some very dear friends in the style to which he wanted to accustom them. So he put the muscle on pipeline contractors reaching in to Oklahoma. The oil pipeline in question runs from Houston to Woodbridge, N.J. He was convicted, sentenced to 10 years and fined $30,000. At this dramatic moment he grew as Shakespearean as he could. He did it all, he said, for the labor movement and to give the workingman a decent life.

We doubt it. Especially since the gray eminence in the whole rotten field still is one Joey Fay, who was an awesome power for decades before he was convicted in 1945 for extorting $368,000 from contractors on the Deleware Aqueduct project. He went to Sing Sing. He was a power right from his cell in his own local, in his international union as a vice president, in national politics in rackets which would make today's shakedowns seem like old-fashioned collegiate panty raids.

Fay had enough political clout to shake state and national dynasties. Today, he still draws an average of $15,500 a year in annual grants from Local 825.

After Fay went to prison, his seat was kept warm by Pete Weber -- for 16 years. He made things rough for the nation's building and construction industry. He told the White House where to get off. He boasted of his influence in Congress. He smirked at the President's Council of Economic Advisers. He ran construction wages higher than hot pants– and they became the fashion across the nation.

He was, in effect, a one-man wave of inflation. His was rule by dictate. His wage and fringe policies, the experts say, raised the cost of construction, and thus taxes, by billions of dollars over the years across the land. His influence reached far beyond his 11-state jurisdiction.

But he threatened construction contractors once too often. He was jerked out of Joey Fay's pale. He was convicted of extortion and conspiracy and taking three payoffs totaling $10,500 from an Oklahoma company, threatening labor trouble etc., etc., on June 7, 1969. He was imprisoned, gently, at Danbury, a country club really, used mostly for politically tinged prisoners, last June.

Most recently, Weber not only was president-business agent of the crucial Local 825, which has jurisdiction over the racket-infiltrated state of New Jersey as well as four New York counties, but ran the union in tandem with his brother Edward. The latter's record is clean. Ed, however, was the union's secretary-treasurer.

When Pete went to prison, the local's Executive Board made Ed president -business agent. Not too long ago there was an election. The new president was defeated by one Lawrence Cahil, himself a former officer. The count was close: The insurgent Cahill won by 145 votes. So the Weber crowd shouted for a recount -- though under the rules this is unconstitutional. And these were Weber's rules. No recount.

The recount is on at this writing. So is the dynasty. Yet this saga has been played in comparative obscurity though it is more than a one-acter.

It is the real life drama of a hundred local barons.

Does no one care?

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--A former Nazi editor, who was Adolf Hitler's leading propagandist in occupied Slovakia during the 1940's, has now become a power on the Republican National Committee.

He is Dr. Joseph Pauco, who trumpeted the Nazi line throughout Slovakia and hailed the Nazi persecution of the Jews. As late as 1957, he defended his past Nazi persecution activities as "the cause of great and sacred truth."

Yet this notorious ex-Nazi was invited by President Nixon to attend a White House prayer service on Sept. 12. While no other White House worshiper may have been more in need of prayer, it is ironical that Pauco should wind up at a Nixon devotional. For his mentor and mahatma, Joseph Tiso, the puppet dictator of Slovakia, was hanged as a war criminal.

Hitler ended his bloody conquest of Czechoslavakia by dividing the country and installing Tiso as the ruler of Slovakia. Pauco was named editor-in-chief of Tiso's official organ, Slovak, which became the strident voice of the Nazi regime. In effect, Pauco became Slovakia's Joseph Goebbels.

One of Pauco's close associates in the Nazi hierarchy was Dr. J. M. Kirschbaum, who has been accused by the Jewish Community Council in Prague of sending Slovakian Jews to the gas chambers in Auschwitz and other murder camps.

PICTURE PROOF

Kirschbaum denies the charge. But we have dug out, at least, an old newspaper picture of Kirschbaum in his Slovak SS uniform, his hand raised in the Hitler salute.

Pauco and Kirschbaum escaped Tiso's fate by fleeing to the West. Pauco reached the U. S. in 1950; Kirschbaum got only as far as Toronto.

Eventually, Pauco took over the weekly newspaper, Slovak v Amerike, in Middletown, Pa., and named his old friend Kirschbaum as an adviser.

The natty, charming Pauco was brought into the Republican National Committee as chief Slovak-American adviser by the former chairman, Interior Secretary Rogers Morton. The present chairman, Kansas Senator Bob Dole, appointed Pauco comptroller of the committee's ethnic council.

Pauco is also serving as a Nixon appointee on the Small Business Administration advisory council.

Not long ago, Pauco and Kirschbaum helped to establish the Slovak World Congress, and they held a meeting in Toronto in June. They were showered with greetings from Senators John Tower, R-Tex., Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., Roman Hruska, R-Neb., and others.

Senators Robert Taft, R-Ohio, and Claiborne Pell, D-R. I., actually showed up in Toronto to address the meeting.

From the White House on down, these prominent Americans can be excused for being unaware of the Nazi backgrounds of Pauco and Kirschbaum. But the official who is supposed to keep track of ex-Nazis, Assistant Attorney General Robert Mardian, the Justice Department's internal security specialist, also attended the Toronto affair.

SECURITY OFFICIAL DUPED

Incredibly, Mardian told the ex-Nazis and their pals that he felt "expecially akin to you and your organization." He declared stirringly: "It is a common heritage that binds us together here today."

Then, with an oratorical flourish that must have caused Pauco and Kirschbaum to choke, Mardian added, "It matters not whether a dictatorship is communist, fascist or Nazi--all dictatorships are without respect for liberty."

Mardian might have picked up a clue to Pauco's Nazi past by reading his biography in Who's Who. For Pauco lists among his accomplishments the editorship of the old Slovak daily. If this was missed by Mardian, it was picked up by an amateur Nazi hunter and Democratic Party official, Bill Quinn, who identified the daily as a Nazi mouthpiece.

He tipped us off, and we have now traced Pauco's past in old Library of Congress records, books and newspapers.

"There is only one alliance, and that alliance is with Germany," wrote Pauco in a signed editorial on Sept. 17, 1944. Again on Oct. 11, 1944, he printed: "The great German Reich, led by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, proved to the Slovaks its benevolence."

In a typical diatribe against the Jews, his Nazi newspaper declared on Sept. 3, 1944: "We all know about their moral decay and their murderous hatred of the Christian people."

Is it possible that Pauco, now 57, has changed his views after 25 years? As late as August, while he was preparing to pray with the President, he praised the war criminal Tiso as a "martyr."

Footnote: My associate Les Whitten reached Pauco at Middletown. He denied that his wartime newspaper was a Nazi organ. "I ran a Slovak paper," he said. Asked the paper's attack on the Jews, he said at first, "I can't remember," then declared: "We were friends of the Jews." He added heartily, "Anybody who says we were Nazis is full of baloney." The Republican National Committee, he said, would verify his good name. Kirschbaum has an unlisted telephone in Toronto and couldn't be reached.

Just before he was dismissed as Premier, he was informed by an American correspondent that former President Herbert Hoover has just died. Khrushchev tartly remarked: "So what else is new?"

It was his callous, brusk and often vile speech that lost Khrushchev the respect of nearly all the foreigners who knew him. Despite his snide remark, it was through Herbert Hoover that the United States distributed food in the Soviet Union in the 1920's when famine conditions prevailed in large areas. Khrushchev may well have been one of those millions whose lives were saved.

Khrushchev lived by his wits all of his life. He visited the United States September 15-27, 1959, and traveled across the country, ending with a visit to Camp David, where a new spirit of Soviet-American friendship was supposed to have developed. Khrushchev welched on his agreement to let President Eisenhower visit Russia. The shooting down of one of our U-2 planes in May, 1960, which had been flying over Russia for two years, was a convenient excuse to end the "spirit of Camp David" and bar the Eisenhower visit.

The only action during Khrushchev's Communist Party leadership that qualified him as a statesman was his denunciation of Stalin as a murderer, an incompetent in military affairs and an unprincipled scoundrel who had brought immeasurable grief upon his countrymen. For this Khrushchev was denounced as a brazen opportunist. But he survived the attacks in 1956 to become Premier in 1958.

He brought on the first nuclear showdown in history, between the USSR and the USA, in 1962. He declared that the Monroe Doctrine was dead and he was right: he killed it by taking control of Cuba.

Khrushchev was a dangerous man. He once threatened to raze the Acropolis in Athens with atomic bombs. He personally presided over the shelling of Budapest in 1956. Despite his denunciation of Stalin, he followed in Stalin's footsteps in foreign affairs by furthering Soviet imperialism. He was deposed because his methods were crude or ineffective, not because they were out of line with present Soviet purposes.

True to its liberal image, American radio and TV interviewed the family whose farm Khrushchev had visited in the Midwest. What the family did not seem to realize is that Khrushchev would have taken their farm away from them and sent them packing to Siberia.

Five Constitutional Amendments are being submitted to the voters in a special election October 5th. Four of the amendments could be classed as not controversial. One, however, will spark heated debate. Amendment number four gives the legislature power to pass laws authorizing pari-mutuel wagering on horse racing. This constitutional amendment does not propose regulation of racing, determine ownership of racing operations or establish revenue provision for pari-mutuel betting. It will be up to the legislature to adopt laws imposing all such control. Both the opponents and proponents are organized. This one will likely attract the most interest of the five issues. Proponents feel pari-mutuel betting could provide a new source of revenue for Missouri at a time when revenues are badly needed. They contend Missourians presently will go to Illinois, Arkansas and Nebraska to spend their racing dollars and these dollars should be kept in Missouri. Further, they feel individuals should have entertainment freedom of choice. No one would be forced to attend the horse races or bet. Finally, they claim it is impossible for the state government to legislate the morals of its citizens. Of course, we're in favor of amendment number four. We don't ask anybody else to vote for it, we don't ask anybody else to vote against it, but we don't see that it will add any to the rag-tagged, bob-tails that hangs around the race tracks than they do at present, since the tracks over in East St. Louis all the big-shots there all live in St. Louis anyway.

NIXON AND HIROHITO

President Nixon must by now be regarded by the Japanese as an unpredictable schizophrenic. As the generous Dr. Jekyll, he cleared the way for the reversion of Okinawa. But more recently Nixon has been cast in the role of Mr. Hyde in Japanese newspapers. His decision to visit China smashed the entire orientation of Japan's foreign policy. The surcharge on imports and monetary pressure on the yen forced similarly unwelcome changes in Japan's commercial policies. The fact that both actions were taken with little advance warning and no consultation was deeply damaging to the Japanese necessity of maintaining "face."

Dr. Jekyll reappeared when President Nixon announced that he would meet with Emperor Hirohito when the Japanese monarch touches down in Alaska on Sunday, Sept. 26, enroute to a European tour. The meeting is fated to be almost totally ceremonial. Hirohito, under the Japanese Constitution of 1946, is merely "the symbol of the state ... deriving his position from the will of the people." But symbols and ceremony are as important to the Japanese mind as reality and brass tacks are to a Westerner.

At 69, the shy and mild-mannered Hirohito also represents something of a dual personality in Western eyes. On one hand he is the quite marine biologist who putters in his laboratory at the new palace in Tokyo. On the other, he is the former mighty Emperor of a people who revered him as a god called Tenno, or "Heavenly Ruler." In a wartime bunker, Hirohito overcame his retiring nature and centuries of protocol when he commanded the Japanese cabinet to end the war and sue for peace. Now a controversial book -- Japan's Imperial Conspiracy by David Bergamini--charges that far from being a passive figurehead, Hirohito was actually a rabid advocate of military expansion in the 1920s and 1930s.

History, the personalities involved and even the site of the meeting -- Anchorage -- combine to lend an air of improbability to this exercise in breach-healing. But the formal exchange of courtesies between Nixon and Hirohito may go a long way toward improving the mood of Japanese-American relations. In the hard economic and foreign policy bargaining that lies ahead in Washington and Tokyo, a better mood is the first requirement for success.

NEW YORK — You 're getting middle-aged if —

You can think of more people you'd like to leave out of a will than put in it.

Every dawning when you awake you lie in bed for 15 full minutes trying to think of a good worthwhile reason for getting up and facing life. There is none. Habit is all that gets you up.

You decide it is high time you taught your wife how to put up the storm windows herself. After all, that's what she'd have to do if something ever happened to you.

One fine morning you study your face in the mirror and your heart leaps with horror as you detect a hair growing in your ear. The color of the hair is gray.

You quit sending away box tops because you can't think of anything you really want back.

For everything that makes you smile there are two that make you frown and five that make you yawn.

Every personal letter you write contains some comment on the current state of the weather, and the comment is rarely laudatory.

When you get a cold, it hangs on two days longer than it used to—and takes one more bottle of bourbon to cure.

You suspect that not one but three of your fellow workers at the office are secretly trying to get your job, and now and then you get a little melancholy over the fact that this world holds such treachery.

It is difficult to find anyone to have a discussion with, because they are either too old and opinionated or too young and callow to take seriously.

Even with the help of your bifocals it becomes increasingly difficult to read the fine print on medicine bottle labels.

On rainy days you like to review your life insurance policy and try to figure whether, in the eventuality of your demise, it would provide for your wife until she could find another husband half the man you are.

Generally speaking, you feel better in the autumn than in the spring and, specifically speaking, you can't remember the last time you felt really good all over.

You haven't bothered to estimate the number of days you still have left to work before you get a pension, but you can make a pretty close guess on the number of months.

Yep, there's no doubt about it—you're really middle-aged. But you don't have to stay middle-aged.

You can always outgrow ...

CONSTITUTIONAL
OCTOBER 5 BALLOT

Five Constitutional Amendments are being submitted to the voters in a special election October 5. Four of the amendments could be classed as not controverial. One, however, will spark heated debate.

Amendment No. 4 gives the legislature power to pass laws authorizing pari- mutuel wagering on horse racing. This constitutional amendment does not propose regulations for racing, determine ownership of racing operations or establish revenue provisions for pari-mutuel betting. It will be up to the legislature to adopt laws imposing all such controls.

Both the opponents and proponents are organized. This one will likely attract the most interest of the five issues.

Proponents feel pari-mutuel betting could provide a new source of revenue for Missouri at a time when revenues are badly needed. They contend Missourians presently go to Illinois, Arkansas and Nebraska to spend their racing dollars and those dollars should be kept in Missouri. Further, they feel individuals should have entertainment freedom of choice. No one would be forced to attend horse races or to bet. Finally, they claim it is impossible for state government to legislate the morals of its citizens.

Opponents of the amendment are quick to indicate people who can't afford to gamble are the ones most attracted to it. These people, it is claimed, feel they can risk what little they have hoping to win large sums of money in return. Opponents further contend pari-mutuel betting would attract an undesirable element to the state and the amount of revenue would be small in conparison to the needs of state government. Finally, they anticipate the cost of enforcement will be an unrealized expense that will nibble away at the revenues gained from pari-mutuel betting on horse races.

Amendment No. 1 would lower from 10,000 to 5,000 the population necessary for a city to adopt a charter form of government and it expands the home rule power of these charter cities. Presently charter cities are permitted to enact ordinances only as expressly permitted by state laws. This proposal would allow cities with charter forms of government to adopt any ordinances not prohibited by the State Constitution. This again illustrates how the state's 1945 constitution can be modernized to meet existing problems.

Adoption of this amendment would ease the burden on the general Assembly as in the past many bills were introduced giving additional powers to cities, thus making the General Assembly sort of a super city council. Opponents have not yet presented their arguments.

Amendment No. 2 permitting only Greene and Clay Counties to retain their present property tax rate is important only to these two areas.

Clay and Greene Counties emphasize the need to retain their existing tax rate of 50 cents rather than having it decrease to 35 cents as will be the case since these counties now have an assessed valuation of $300 million.

Proponents point our these counties are experienceing tremendous growth and will be handicapped in providing needed services if their tax rate drops to the lower figure. There has been no expressed opposition.

Amendment No. 3 is a $150 million bond issue for water pollution control projects. This represents 25 per cent of a $600 million program spread over the next seven to ten years to provide secondary sewerage treatment facilities for all cities and tertiary treatment for some cities. Fifty-five per cent of the $600 million will come from federal funds and 20 per cent will come from local funds.

Proponents state the bond issue will augment long-range planning for cities better than the present system of funding out of current revenues. Cities and sewer districts will know that this money is available on a continuing basis and will be free to plan thier expenditures accordingly.

Opposition may develop over the interest costs of bond issues. Opponents will prefer funding the program out of current revenues. However, ecology is such a sensitive issue that serious opposition to this program may fail to materialize.

Amendment No. 5 clarifies a provision of the state's constitution, which has been creating problems since its adoption, for the Missouri Personnel Division. Regardless how long a person has lived in Missouri, he is not eligible for veterans' preference under the merit system unless he was a citizen of the state at the time he was inducted into the service. This amendment makes all veterans eligible for preferential treatment regardless of their state citizenship when they went into the service. No opposition is expected to this amendment.

A FOR or AGAINST vote on each of the amendments is registered by placing an X in the square opposite the viter's choice.

CANADIAN CAPER

Our friends and neighbors to the north, the Canadians, must be disappointed. Premier Aleksei N. Kosgin of the Soviet Union will pay a visit in October and there will be no ping pong. It will be the first visit of a Chief of State of the U.S.S.R. to Canada and it will ignore the new protocol of diplomacy, ping pong, an honorable game that President Nixon used to "open the door" to Red China. Henry Kissinger, the durable diplomat who bounced into Peking in the wake of a ping pong ball, probably set the stage for the visit of the Russian premier who is trying to prove to the world, especially the Chinese, that he can come to the North American continent and do business with the partners of the United States.

But the Canadians had better have their guards up. Russian diplomats have visited other countries, such as Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and East Germany. There was no ping pong involved there, either, but rockets, armored units and slavery followed in the wake. Such a state of affairs doesn't seem likely since Canada adjoins us physically. But then the prospects of Soviet domination didn't seem likely in Cuba either when an "agrarian reformer" named Castro began dealing out his brand of "democracy."

The Canadians have always been a staunch people, as the Germans who fought them in the port of Dieppe will attest, but their government has grown more socialistic and has extended further the hand of friendship to communist butchers, especially the Chinese communists. If they want a lesson from history, all they have to do is look at what our diplomatic recognition of Russia led in 1933. Now the stories of the Kosygin trip to Canada center on speculation of arms control talks. The Canadians might also think of our present predicament on arms control. The Russians have us bested in inter-continental ballistics missiles. With or without ping pong, dealing with the communist is deadly business.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--A former Nazi editor, who was Adolf Hitler's leading propagandist in occupied Slovakia during the 1940's, has now become a power on the Republican National Committee.

He is Dr. Joseph Pauco, who trumpeted the Nazi line throughout Slovakia and hailed the Nazi persecution of the Jews. As late as 1957, he defended his past Nazi persecution activities as "the cause of great and sacred truth."

Yet this notorious ex-Nazi was invited by President Nixon to attend a White House prayer service on Sept. 12. While no other White House worshiper may have been more in need of prayer, it is ironical that Pauco should wind up at a Nixon devotional. For his mentor and mahatma, Joseph Tiso, the puppet dictator of Slovakia, was hanged as a war criminal.

Hitler ended his bloody conquest of Czechoslavakia by dividing the country and installing Tiso as the ruler of Slovakia. Pauco was named editor-in-chief of Tiso's official organ, Slovak, which became the strident voice of the Nazi regime. In effect, Pauco became Slovakia's Joseph Goebbels.

One of Pauco's close associates in the Nazi hierarchy was Dr. J. M. Kirschbaum, who has been accused by the Jewish Community Council in Prague of sending Slovakian Jews to the gas chambers in Auschwitz and other murder camps.

PICTURE PROOF

Kirschbaum denies the charge. But we have dug out, at least, an old newspaper picture of Kirschbaum in his Slovak SS uniform, his hand raised in the Hitler salute.

Pauco and Kirschbaum escaped Tiso's fate by fleeing to the West. Pauco reached the U. S. in 1950; Kirschbaum got only as far as Toronto.

Eventually, Pauco took over the weekly newspaper, Slovak v Amerike, in Middletown, Pa., and named his old friend Kirschbaum as an adviser.

The natty, charming Pauco was brought into the Republican National Committee as chief Slovak-American adviser by the former chairman, Interior Secretary Rogers Morton. The present chairman, Kansas Senator Bob Dole, appointed Pauco comptroller of the committee's ethnic council.

Pauco is also serving as a Nixon appointee on the Small Business Administration advisory council.

Not long ago, Pauco and Kirschbaum helped to establish the Slovak World Congress, and they held a meeting in Toronto in June. They were showered with greetings from Senators John Tower, R-Tex., Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., Roman Hruska, R-Neb., and others.

Senators Robert Taft, R-Ohio, and Claiborne Pell, D-R. I., actually showed up in Toronto to address the meeting.

From the White House on down, these prominent Americans can be excused for being unaware of the Nazi backgrounds of Pauco and Kirschbaum. But the official who is supposed to keep track of ex-Nazis, Assistant Attorney General Robert Mardian, the Justice Department's internal security specialist, also attended the Toronto affair.

SECURITY OFFICIAL DUPED

Incredibly, Mardian told the ex-Nazis and their pals that he felt "expecially akin to you and your organization." He declared stirringly: "It is a common heritage that binds us together here today."

Then, with an oratorical flourish that must have caused Pauco and Kirschbaum to choke, Mardian added, "It matters not whether a dictatorship is communist, fascist or Nazi--all dictatorships are without respect for liberty."

Mardian might have picked up a clue to Pauco's Nazi past by reading his biography in Who's Who. For Pauco lists among his accomplishments the editorship of the old Slovak daily. If this was missed by Mardian, it was picked up by an amateur Nazi hunter and Democratic Party official, Bill Quinn, who identified the daily as a Nazi mouthpiece.

He tipped us off, and we have now traced Pauco's past in old Library of Congress records, books and newspapers.

"There is only one alliance, and that alliance is with Germany," wrote Pauco in a signed editorial on Sept. 17, 1944. Again on Oct. 11, 1944, he printed: "The great German Reich, led by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, proved to the Slovaks its benevolence."

In a typical diatribe against the Jews, his Nazi newspaper declared on Sept. 3, 1944: "We all know about their moral decay and their murderous hatred of the Christian people."

Is it possible that Pauco, now 57, has changed his views after 25 years? As late as August, while he was preparing to pray with the President, he praised the war criminal Tiso as a "martyr."

Footnote: My associate Les Whitten reached Pauco at Middletown. He denied that his wartime newspaper was a Nazi organ. "I ran a Slovak paper," he said. Asked the paper's attack on the Jews, he said at first, "I can't remember," then declared: "We were friends of the Jews." He added heartily, "Anybody who says we were Nazis is full of baloney." The Republican National Committee, he said, would verify his good name. Kirschbaum has an unlisted telephone in Toronto and couldn't be reached.

Inside Labor

CONSTRUCTION CHIEF'S
MUSCLE:

World's highest paid labor leader pressuring courts, Congress to free him from prison

NEWARK, N. J.: - This is the saga of the world's highest paid labor leader – a surly, defiant man, always impatiently annoyed when the prosecutors and courts got in the way of his yachting pleasure. A man of such intrigue that his full exposure and list of associates would shake many a graveyard, political and actual, including some recently buried.

He is of the type more powerful than the embattled national chiefs in Washington. Or he was. For now he is in the Danbury Federal Prison seeking shortening of his 10 year sentence on grounds of illness, namely, diabetes.

He is Peter Weber by name, and in the past two fiscal years' record of his all-powerful Operating Engineers Local 825 here, drew an average of $173,000 annually.

Being a chap of horizons as wide as the mouth of his black bag, Weber, without whose permission one really couldn't construct, build or use heavy machinery in 11 Eastern states ranging from Maine to Buffalo, N. Y., to Delaware, drew two salaries. One of being 8th vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL-CIO) and one for the post of "president-business agent" of the 8,000-member Local 825.

His national salary and expenses and allowances totaled anywhere from $25,622.19 to $28,600. His local salary came to $80,000 annually with allowances and expenses which one recent year totaled some $85,000. Thus the federals reckon he averaged $173,000 annually over the past few years.

Also, he was president of the national Operating Engineers Union Northeast Conference of 11 states, for the moment the record is not clear what that brought him.

Apparently, these moneys were not enough to keep him and some very dear friends in the style to which he wanted to accustom them. So he put the muscle on pipeline contractors reaching in to Oklahoma. The oil pipeline in question runs from Houston to Woodbridge, N.J. He was convicted, sentenced to 10 years and fined $30,000. At this dramatic moment he grew as Shakespearean as he could. He did it all, he said, for the labor movement and to give the workingman a decent life.

We doubt it. Especially since the gray eminence in the whole rotten field still is one Joey Fay, who was an awesome power for decades before he was convicted in 1945 for extorting $368,000 from contractors on the Deleware Aqueduct project. He went to Sing Sing. He was a power right from his cell in his own local, in his international union as a vice president, in national politics in rackets which would make today's shakedowns seem like old-fashioned collegiate panty raids.

Fay had enough political clout to shake state and national dynasties. Today, he still draws an average of $15,500 a year in annual grants from Local 825.

After Fay went to prison, his seat was kept warm by Pete Weber -- for 16 years. He made things rough for the nation's building and construction industry. He told the White House where to get off. He boasted of his influence in Congress. He smirked at the President's Council of Economic Advisers. He ran construction wages higher than hot pants-- and they became the fashion across the nation.

He was, in effect, a one-man wave of inflation. His was rule by dictate. His wage and fringe policies, the experts say, raised the cost of construction, and thus taxes, by billions of dollars over the years across the land. His influence reached far beyond his 11-state jurisdiction.

But he threatened construction contractors once too often. He was jerked out of Joey Fay's pale. He was convicted of extortion and conspiracy and taking three payoffs totaling $10,500 from an Oklahoma company, threatening labor trouble etc., etc., on June 7, 1969. He was imprisoned, gently, at Danbury, a country club really, used mostly for politically tinged prisoners, last June.

Most recently, Weber not only was president-business agent of the crucial Local 825, which has jurisdiction over the racket-infiltrated state of New Jersey as well as four New York counties, but ran the union in tandem with his brother Edward. The latter's record is clean. Ed, however, was the union's secretary-treasurer.

When Pete went to prison, the local's Executive Board made Ed president -business agent. Not too long ago there was an election. The new president was defeated by one Lawrence Cahil, himself a former officer. The count was close: The insurgent Cahill won by 145 votes. So the Weber crowd shouted for a recount -- though under the rules this is unconstitutional. And these were Weber's rules. No recount.

The recount is on at this writing. So is the dynasty. Yet this saga has been played in comparative obscurity though it is more than a one-acter.

It is the real life drama of a hundred local barons.

Military Pay Hike Caught In Wage-Price Freeze Duel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $2.4 billion military pay raise just approved by Congress may be caught in a wage-price squeeze play.

Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., has threatened to fight for scheduled but frozen pay raises for civilian federal employes unless military compensation is frozen on the same basis.

Pay raises for government employes have been frozen until next July 1, and McGee, chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, said the military should be subject to the same rules, "as a matter of simple equity."

The draft extension bill passed by the Senate and sent to President Nixon Tuesday boosts military pay Oct. 1. But the White House has indicated it may be subject to the current 90-day wage-price freeze, which expires Nov. 13.

McGee said he has written the President urging that military pay raises be frozen until July 1.

As part of his new economic policy, Nixon ordered a sixmonth delay in some $1.3 billion in federal pay raises scheduled for Jan. 1.

The postponement could be overruled by Congress, if action is taken by Oct. 8.

"A failure to freeze military salary increases at once would not only be unfair to civilian federal employes," McGee said, "it would almost certainly result in Congress taking whatever action may be necessary to unfreeze civilian pay levels."

He said that would be a serious blow to the administration effort to halt inflation.

McGee and his Senate panel have been under pressure from organized labor to act to overrule the pay freeze.

"As chairman of the committee," McGee wrote Nixon, "I would have to advise you that without a military pay freeze, I could not continue with clear conscience to ask our committee to hold the line against federal employe pay legislation."

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., however, is sponsoring legislation to further increase the total military pay raise, to some $2.7 billion, with the additional funds concentrated on men in the lowest ranks.

"I'm going to fight to make it effective Nov. 15," Allott said. "The inequities in this situation are not on the side of the government worker, they're on the side of the lower grades in the military."

Allott said a freeze until mid1972 would jeopardize administration efforts to move from the draft to a volunteer army.

Soviet Spy Defects As British Expel 105 From Soviet Embassy

LONDON (AP) — A senior Soviet intelligence agent defected to Britain with documents on a Russian spy network, the Foreign Office announced today.

The Foreign Office ordered 105 Soviet employes of the embassy, the trade delegation, the Moscow Bank and the Aeroflot airline to leave Britain.

Ninety of the Russians currently on duty here were given two weeks to leave. Another 15, currently abroad, will be denied permission to return to London.

The mass expulsion is the biggest of is kind in modern diplomatic history except in cases of countries breaking off relations.

The expelled officials, all accused of espionage activities, are spread through the embassy, the airline, the tourist agency Intourist, a machinery rental center and the Moscow Narodny Bank, a Foreign Office spokesman said.

Sir Denis Greenhill, permanent secretary acting for Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home, gave the British decision in written form to Ivan Ippilotov.

None of those expelled will be replaced, the British said. This would reduce the Soviet population to 445 and the Foreign Office said anyone else detected in espionage activities would be ejected without replacement.

The Foreign Office said: "Evidence of the scale and nature of Soviet espionage in Britain conducted under the auspices of the Soviet Embassy, trade delegations and other organizations, has been provided by a Soviet official who recently applied for and was given permission to remain in this country."

Parade Cancellation Economic

Red China Pronounces Mao In Good Health

TOKYO (AP) — Communist Chinese authorities, declaring Mao Tse-tung is in good health, say the chief reason for the cancellation of the Oct. 1 National Day parade in Peking is economic, a Japanese newspaper reported today.

The Nihon Keizai Shimbun said in a dispatch from Peking that diplomatic missions in the Chinese capital had been informed of the cancellation about a week ago.

Chinese officials have denied rumors linking Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung's health with the cancellation of the parade, the paper said. The officials were quoted as saying Mao, 77, is in good health.

The dispatch did not refer to speculation about tension along the 4,500-mile Chinese-Soviet border, nor did it mention the reported Chinese army order calling all troops on furloughs back to their units.

The paper quoted Chinese authorities as saying the Peking leadership had decided to "reform" the traditional way of celebrating the National Day "to save time and expense."

It said workers had to rehearse for the parade for a long time, thereby reducing production. Staging of the parade also demanded a large amount of time and expense, it added.

Nihon Keizai said the authorities also denied reports that Mao's portraits and statues have been removed from public places.

Reports, from Peking had said the removal of Mao's portraits and statues from public places was in line with the Chinese leadership's attempts to eradicate Mao's "personality cult."

Nihon Keizai said messages sent recently to Mao, his heir apparent, Lin Piao, and Premier Chou En-lai by China's allies proved Mao is in good health. It added Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie's visit to Peking next month is expected to prove this.

Peking's official news media have to date kept silence on the reported developments.

On Thursday, the Polish newspaper Zycie Warsawy said it did not know to what extent various rumors about the mainland were true "but already we have received certain information from Peking which indicates that probably substantial political changes are under way there." It did not elaborate.

Virginia Congressman Top Supreme Court Prospect

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has thrown out a broad hint that he may nominate Rep. Richard H. Poff, a Virginia Republican, to fill one of two openings on the Supreme Court.

Poff's chances appeared brighter after Nixon discussed with members of the Economic Club of Detroit the kind of candidates he was considering. "Teachers, legislators for example with great experience on the House and Senate Judiciary Committees—this gives you an idea," he said Thursday.

Poff, 47, is the second-ranked Republican on the House Judiciary Committee. He helped pilot Nixon's crime control legislation through Congress last year and is considered a "law and order" conservative of the sort the President would turn to for the high court.

He already has the backing of the committee chairman, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., and the ranking Republican, Rep. William M. McCulloch of Ohio, though he voted against civil rights bills they sponsored in the 1960s.

A second place on the Court opened Thursday when Justice John M. Harlan retired. Harlan, 72, and suffering cancer of the spine, stepped down six days after Justice Hugo L. Black, who is in critical condition at the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

In announcing Harlan's retirement, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was expected "to move as swiftly as possible to find two highly qualified individuals to fill the vacancies."

The court opens its new term Oct. 4. Hearings are scheduled to begin Oct. 12 with argument on the constitutionality of the death penalty. Only justices on the bench when a case is argued are permitted to take part in the eventual decision.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana sais that once the nominations are made the Senate would act on them as quickly as possible. In the past the Senate readily approved two Nixon nominees, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackumn, and rejected two others, Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and G. Harrold Carswell.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, DMass., said Burger and Blackmun "reflected the conservative element" and that he hoped the nominees to succeed Black and Harlan would represent "more moderate elements of American opinion."

Ziegler said Nixon would use the same "strict constructionist" standard he used in the past. This means a restrained view of the Court's functions and a reluctance to upset state or federal laws.

Speaking in Detroit the President said appointment of a woman was a possibility and that he was more interested in a prospect's judicial philosophy than his region.

The hint about Poff came about when Nixon said he might select someone other than an experienced judge.

"Justice Felix Frankfurter, a teacher, was a great justice," he said. "Justice Louis D. Brandeis, one of my heroes, was a practicing lawyer."

Burger, Blackmun, Haynsworth and Carswell all were federal appeals court judges when they were named for the Supreme Court. Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Potter Stewart and Thurgood Marshall also had judicial experience. Justices William O. Douglas and Byron R. White had none when they took their seats.

Harlan's retirement ends a 16-year Court career noted principally for judicial scholars'ip and the theory that Bill of Rights safeguards should be applied to the states only when necessary to ensure "fundamental fairness."

He wrote more than 200 dissenting opinions and was recognized as the leader of the conservative wing, a distinct minority following the departure of Frankfurter in 1962.

Harlan's philosophy was probably best expressed in a 1964 dissent from one of the apportionment rulings that have required states to make legislative districts equal in population.

"The Constitution," wrote Harlan, "is not a panacea for every blot upon the public welfare; nor should this Court, ordained as a judicial body, be thought of as a general haven for reform movements. If the time comes when this Court is looked upon by well-meaning people—or, worse yet, by the Court itself—as the repository for all reforms, I think the seeds of trouble are being sown for this institution."

Tall and serene, he looked the part of a Justice and was the grandson of one, the first John Marshall Harlan, who served for 34 years. He took on some of the toughest opinionwriting assignments, including his last major decision for the Court last May upholding the latitude of juries to impose death sentences.

He supported the right of privacy and disapproved of various police searches and aspects of government eavesdropping.

His voting record was generally to the right of Black, Douglas, Brennan and Marshall and to the left of Burger and Blackmun.

Two-China Plan Wins First Test

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States won the first test of strength on its U.N. two-China formula today when the General Assembly rejected a request to bar the plan from the agenda.

The vote was 65 to put the U.S. item on its agenda and 47 against. There were 15 abstentions.

The U.S. item was a vehicle for a 17-nation resolution that would seat Communist China in both the assembly and the Security Council and leave Nationalist China in the assembly.

The assembly had already agreed without a vote to include in its agenda a pro-Peking item used as a handle for a resolution to oust Nationalist China completely and seat Communist China.

Military Pay Hike Caught In Wage-Price Freeze Duel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $2.4 billion military pay raise just approved by Congress may be caught in a wage-price squeeze play.

Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., has threatened to fight for scheduled but frozen pay raises for civilian federal employes unless military compensation is frozen on the same basis.

Pay raises for government employes have been frozen until next July 1, and McGee, chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, said the military should be subject to the same rules, "as a matter of simple equity."

The draft extension bill passed by the Senate and sent to President Nixon Tuesday boosts military pay Oct. 1. But the White House has indicated it may be subject to the current 90-day wage-price freeze, which expires Nov. 13.

McGee said he has written the President urging that military pay raises be frozen until July 1.

As part of his new economic policy, Nixon ordered a sixmonth delay in some $1.3 billion in federal pay raises scheduled for Jan. 1.

The postponement could be overruled by Congress, if action is taken by Oct. 8.

"A failure to freeze military salary increases at once would not only be unfair to civilian federal employes," McGee said, "it would almost certainly result in Congress taking whatever action may be necessary to unfreeze civilian pay levels."

He said that would be a serious blow to the administration effort to halt inflation.

McGee and his Senate panel have been under pressure from organized labor to act to overrule the pay freeze.

"As chairman of the committee," McGee wrote Nixon, "I would have to advise you that without a military pay freeze, I could not continue with clear conscience to ask our committee to hold the line against federal employe pay legislation."

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., however, is sponsoring legislation to further increase the total military pay raise, to some $2.7 billion, with the additional funds concentrated on men in the lowest ranks.

"I'm going to fight to make it effective Nov. 15," Allott said. "The inequities in this situation are not on the side of the government worker, they're on the side of the lower grades in the military."

Allott said a freeze until mid1972 would jeopardize administration efforts to move from the draft to a volunteer army.

Soviet Spy Defects As British Expel 105 From Soviet Embassy

LONDON (AP) — A senior Soviet intelligence agent defected to Britain with documents on a Russian spy network, the Foreign Office announced today.

The Foreign Office ordered 105 Soviet employes of the embassy, the trade delegation, the Moscow Bank and the Aeroflot airline to leave Britain.

Ninety of the Russians currently on duty here were given two weeks to leave. Another 15, currently abroad, will be denied permission to return to London.

The mass expulsion is the biggest of is kind in modern diplomatic history except in cases of countries breaking off relations.

The expelled officials, all accused of espionage activities, are spread through the embassy, the airline, the tourist agency Intourist, a machinery rental center and the Moscow Narodny Bank, a Foreign Office spokesman said.

Sir Denis Greenhill, permanent secretary acting for Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home, gave the British decision in written form to Ivan Ippilotov.

None of those expelled will be replaced, the British said. This would reduce the Soviet population to 445 and the Foreign Office said anyone else detected in espionage activities would be ejected without replacement.

The Foreign Office said: "Evidence of the scale and nature of Soviet espionage in Britain conducted under the auspices of the Soviet Embassy, trade delegations and other organizations, has been provided by a Soviet official who recently applied for and was given permission to remain in this country."

Parade Cancellation Economic

Red China Pronounces Mao In Good Health

TOKYO (AP) — Communist Chinese authorities, declaring Mao Tse-tung is in good health, say the chief reason for the cancellation of the Oct. 1 National Day parade in Peking is economic, a Japanese newspaper reported today.

The Nihon Keizai Shimbun said in a dispatch from Peking that diplomatic missions in the Chinese capital had been informed of the cancellation about a week ago.

Chinese officials have denied rumors linking Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung's health with the cancellation of the parade, the paper said. The officials were quoted as saying Mao, 77, is in good health.

The dispatch did not refer to speculation about tension along the 4,500-mile Chinese-Soviet border, nor did it mention the reported Chinese army order calling all troops on furloughs back to their units.

The paper quoted Chinese authorities as saying the Peking leadership had decided to "reform" the traditional way of celebrating the National Day "to save time and expense."

It said workers had to rehearse for the parade for a long time, thereby reducing production. Staging of the parade also demanded a large amount of time and expense, it added.

Nihon Keizai said the authorities also denied reports that Mao's portraits and statues have been removed from public places.

Reports, from Peking had said the removal of Mao's portraits and statues from public places was in line with the Chinese leadership's attempts to eradicate Mao's "personality cult."

Nihon Keizai said messages sent recently to Mao, his heir apparent, Lin Piao, and Premier Chou En-lai by China's allies proved Mao is in good health. It added Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie's visit to Peking next month is expected to prove this.

Peking's official news media have to date kept silence on the reported developments.

On Thursday, the Polish newspaper Zycie Warsawy said it did not know to what extent various rumors about the mainland were true "but already we have received certain information from Peking which indicates that probably substantial political changes are under way there." It did not elaborate.

Virginia Congressman Top Supreme Court Prospect

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has thrown out a broad hint that he may nominate Rep. Richard H. Poff, a Virginia Republican, to fill one of two openings on the Supreme Court.

Poff's chances appeared brighter after Nixon discussed with members of the Economic Club of Detroit the kind of candidates he was considering. "Teachers, legislators for example with great experience on the House and Senate Judiciary Committees—this gives you an idea," he said Thursday.

Poff, 47, is the second-ranked Republican on the House Judiciary Committee. He helped pilot Nixon's crime control legislation through Congress last year and is considered a "law and order" conservative of the sort the President would turn to for the high court.

He already has the backing of the committee chairman, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., and the ranking Republican, Rep. William M. McCulloch of Ohio, though he voted against civil rights bills they sponsored in the 1960s.

A second place on the Court opened Thursday when Justice John M. Harlan retired. Harlan, 72, and suffering cancer of the spine, stepped down six days after Justice Hugo L. Black, who is in critical condition at the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

In announcing Harlan's retirement, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was expected "to move as swiftly as possible to find two highly qualified individuals to fill the vacancies."

The court opens its new term Oct. 4. Hearings are scheduled to begin Oct. 12 with argument on the constitutionality of the death penalty. Only justices on the bench when a case is argued are permitted to take part in the eventual decision.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana sais that once the nominations are made the Senate would act on them as quickly as possible. In the past the Senate readily approved two Nixon nominees, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackumn, and rejected two others, Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and G. Harrold Carswell.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, DMass., said Burger and Blackmun "reflected the conservative element" and that he hoped the nominees to succeed Black and Harlan would represent "more moderate elements of American opinion."

Ziegler said Nixon would use the same "strict constructionist" standard he used in the past. This means a restrained view of the Court's functions and a reluctance to upset state or federal laws.

Speaking in Detroit the President said appointment of a woman was a possibility and that he was more interested in a prospect's judicial philosophy than his region.

The hint about Poff came about when Nixon said he might select someone other than an experienced judge.

"Justice Felix Frankfurter, a teacher, was a great justice," he said. "Justice Louis D. Brandeis, one of my heroes, was a practicing lawyer."

Burger, Blackmun, Haynsworth and Carswell all were federal appeals court judges when they were named for the Supreme Court. Justices William J. If the time comes when this Court is looked upon by well-meaning people—or, worse yet, by the Court itself—as the repository for all reforms, I think the seeds of trouble are being sown for this institution."

Ann Landers

A Mistress Is A Way Of Escaping Real World

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you will print this. It might help some unfortunate girl get wise to her situation.

When a man keeps a mistress in the shadows he does so for a very interesting reason, one which most mistresses do not understand. She is, of course, lead to believe that if it were only possible, the man would leave his wife and marry her so the whole world could know of their great love.

But usually the truth is he will not divorce his wife and marry her because it would defeat his purpose. It he married her, she would then be a part of the real world, which is exactly what he is trying to escape. She would be no different from his present wife. The excitement would vanish. The man who takes a mistress, does so not because she is the love of his life, who he met too late, but because he wants to flee from the demands of everyday living which have become too heavy. The fact of the matter is, if he had the guts to stand up to life, he wouldn't need her. --------Standing Up In Wilmington, N. C.

Dear Standing: You sound like a guy who has been there. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me what to do about our 15-year-old daughter. Several months ago, Lisa started to hang around the service station a few blocks from here. When we discovered she had a crush on a 19-year-old boy who works the night shift, we checked into the boy's background and found out he is no good.

We told Lisa she was not to see the boy again. For several days she was quiet and sullen but seemed to be behaving. On a hunch, I checked her bed at 11:30 p.m. one night and she was not in it. I sent my husband down to service station and sure enough, she was there. He brought her home.

Last week the boy's picture was in the paper in connection with a holdup. We are relieved because now he is in jail and Lisa knows he's a bad actor. But she is taking it so hard we don't know how to deal with her. The girl will not eat with the family and she looks like the wrath of God. I discovered that she's been sleeping in the dress she was wearing when she was last with him "because it smells like him." (Gasoline.) She wants to go see him in jail and we will not allow it. Are we wrong? Please, Ann, suggest something to get out daughter back on the track. --- Distraught Parents in Shomokin

Dear Parents: Your daughter needs more than a suggestion from me. She needs professional counseling and I urge you to see that she gets it. It sounds as if this girl's been out of control for quite some time. Get going.

Dear Ann Landers: You outsmarted yourself when you told the man who wrote about going steady with the same girl for 32 years to quit bothering you with phony letters. Again you made a point of the fact that the letter came from New Haven and accused the Yalies of playing games. Don't you think anybody in New Haven has real problems? I used to live in that town and I can tell you that there are plenty of mixed-up people there.

Do you actually think it's impossible for a couple to go together for 32 years? If so, you've got a lot to learn. My personal opinion is that anyone who writes to you from anywhere has got to be nuts. ---Green Bay

Dear G.B.: You wrote, didn't you? I don't think you're nuts. But then I live in Chicago. What do I know.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits -- the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers booklet, "Teen- Age Sex -- Ten Ways to Cool it." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Pot Smoking Cuts Down On Cigarettes

NEWARK, N. J. (AP) - Columbia University says it has found in a national survey of youngsters that those who use marijuana are less likely to become cigarette smokers than those who don't.

The university's school of public health said Tuesday its survey covered 1,701 youngsters in the 12-17 age bracket from all sections of the nation.

Of the surveyed adolescents who have used marijuana 10 times or less, 83 per cent are cigarette smokers. Cigarette usage fell to 64 per cent among those who have used marijuana 60 or more times, the school said.

"Apparently, if you smoke pot a lot, who needs cigarettes," said Dr. Eric Josephson of Columbia, who reported on the survey at a conference on student drug use.

According to the survey, 15 per cent of the youngsters that tried marijuana and 3 per cent used it 60 times or more.

More youths in the West, 23 per cent, use marijuana, the survey found. The figure was 20 per cent in the Northeast, 13 per cent in the North Central states and 11 per cent in the South.

"Somewhat surprisingly, our survey did not produce the expected sex differences in marijuana use," Josephson said. Girls used pot almost as much as boys, the survey found. Children of wealthier parents tend to smoke more marijuana than those from lower income households, the survey report said.

Among youngsters in families with an annual income under $10,000, 6 per cent had tried it, but with those in families with an income of $15,000 and over, 19 per cent had tried the drug.

Look of Today's Dairy Case Changed

Millions of Americans drink milk every day. But as we shop for it, we are likely to take for granted the generous array of dairy foods we have to choose from.

But let's linger a little, and take a closer look at the dairy case, at the modern, streamlined containers. Do you see and wonder about changes – some of fairly longstanding-- that you had not thought much about before?

For instance, why is more milk being sold in paper and less in glass? Has glass perhaps disappeared entirely from your market? And speaking of glass, whatever happened to the old creamline milk bottles with the thick cream on top?

Do you see more plastic packages for the various milk products than you used to? And have you been buying your milk in the store instead of having it delivered to your home?

When you stop to think about it, consumer milk packagings have been changing lately, and for a number of years. So have milk distribution methods.

From time to time the Dairy Division of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service looks into and reports on the continuing changes in the milk packing field.

It surveys the sizes and types of milk containers being used by milk dealers doing business in federal milk marketing order areas. It also reports on any changes in how milk is distributed in reaching consumers.

The most recent survey, made in all federal milk order markets across the nation during November 1969, bore out that three significant trends seen in earlier studies are continuing and intensifying.

More and more the dairy industry is changing over from glass milk bottles to the use of paper and plastic milk containers; from small to larger milk containers; and from home deliveries of milk to increased wholesale sales. The latter includes consumer packaged milk sold by milk processing plants to large retail outlets, and also sales to restaurants and institutional feeders, both privately and government-operated.

An important influence in the trend away from glass bottles to use of paper and other single service containers has been the increase in fluid milk sales through retail stores. Single service containers enable consumers and retail store operators to eliminate bottle deposits and the task of returning empties. The opaque paper container, disposable, lighter in weight than glass, and improved to be more leakproof than they were at first, rapidly increased in use. The survey showed they have continued to increase in use, accounting for about 77 percent of all fluid milk sales.

Some glass milk bottles, now square in shape for easier and space-saving storage, are still being used, but overall their use has decreased. Now for the first time, the survey showed, glass bottles no longer predominate as a container for home-delivered milk.

A psychological factor in the use of glass had been the visibility of the creamline, once a consumer gauge of milk quality and desirability. The trend away from glass bottles has been accelerated by the development and growth of the milk homogenization process. This process breaks down the milkfat globules so they are evenly distributed and do not rise to the top of the container as cream.

Thus, there is no creamline, and being able to see the milk becomes less important. Homogenized milk was successfully marketed initially in Connecticut in 1919. Through the years it has grown steadily in favor until today most milk is homogenized.

More recent developments of some significance have been a changeover from wax-coated to plastic-coated paper cartons, and the emerging importance of plastic bottles. First reported in the Pacific Northwest in 1964, use of plastic containers for dairy items has spread throughout the country, but is most prominent in the southern and pacific regions.

The most familiar products we see in plastic are whole milk and ice cream, but it is also now being used to package various other dairy products, such as skim milk, 2 percent (butterfat), buttermilk, flavored milk drinks, yogurt, milk and cream mixtures, eggnog and light and heavy cream including sour cream.

While milk container materials in popular use have been getting lighter in weight, the container sizes have been getting larger. Quart packages have lost ground to the now predominant half-gallon containers, and gallon size containers are coming into wider use.

At the same time, distribution of milk to consumers through home-deliveries has continued to decline.

Nutritional Labeling Reveals Ingredients

WASHINGTON — It may be a long time before many manufacturers and retailers fully adopt any of the nutritional labeling schemes now being tested by five food chains and a research group around the country.

But the information already revealed by one chain could be useful right now to shoppers interested in getting the most nutrition for their money and making sure their family diets are healthful and tasty.

Participating in the tests are Giant Food Inc., Jewel Co., Kroger, First National, Berkeley Co-op and Consumer Research Institute, an arm of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, a trade association.

Some stores are using a system of numbers to measure nutritional values, others are using words and still others are using a mixture of words and numbers. Results will be evaluated by industry and government officials.

The U. S. Food and Drug Administration is hoping the results will point the way toward a uniform system of disclosing basic nutritional values for all food products where such information is not generally known.

The need for a nutritional labeling system is generally accepted by industry, government and consumer groups.

As Dr. Jean Mayer, world reknown nutrition expert, put it the other day when Giant Food's labeling plan was announced, the traditional advice about eating something from the four basic food types each day is no longer applicable to rapidly changing food habits and food products. "For better or worse," he said, "the pattern by which people have fed themselves for many generations has broken down."

Dr. Mayer fells that the best way to help people get proper nutrition in the face of rapid changes in habits and products is to tell them what to look for and then revise labels so that the essential information is readily available and in simple form.

No system of nutritional labeling can be perfectly accurate because of differences in food products from time to time, variations in processing and other factors. The aim is to find a way to describe nutritional values in the simplest and clearest way.

Complicating the problem is the fact that different units of measure are used for various nutrients. In addition, of course, the needs of adults are different from children, and no two adults need exactly the same food ingredients since no two persons are exactly the same.

One of the best possibilities is the system being tested by Giant Food, a Washington-based chain of 94 stores. It is based on a minimum of ten "units" per day of each essential nutrient. Food labels list the number of units for each nutrient in a normal serving of that products.

Thus, a can of sweet peas says that a half cup provides one unit each of Vitamin A and iron, half units of thiamin, riboflavin and niacin and two units of Vitamin C. The label also lists quantities: 4.5 grams of protein, 15.5 grams of carbohydrate, 0.5 grams of fat and 80 calories. Peas have no protein or calcium.

The point is for each individual to get 10 units of each nutrient each day. Another system, such as the one used by Jewel stores, uses percentages of daily requirements. That would mean obtaining 100 per cent of each item per day.

Giant Food has begun the job by labeling 10 products with the units of each nutrient listed. It has also calculated the amount of each nutrient in more than 50 common food products, based on 10 units per day. For a detailed list of nutrient units, send a stamped and addressed envelope to Dept. G, Consumer News Inc., 813 National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C., 20004.

Vane-Calvert Paint Names Vice President

ST. LOUIS — Vane-Calvert Paint Manufacturing Company has apointed Mrs. Robert (Rudy) Cummins vice president in charge of trade sales, advertising and general operations, according to Michael Spartz, president of the 104 year old St. Louis-based company.

Mrs. Cummins has an extensive knowledge of the paint field, having served as an officer of the Staley Paint Manufacturing Company for the past 12 years where, as assistant to the president, she was instrumental in guiding the firm to become the fastest-growing trade sales paint company in the United States at the time it was sold in 1966.

Mrs. Rudy Cummins

Spartz, commenting on he appointment of Mrs. Cummins as vice president and the current expansion of Vane-Calvert's manufacturing and sales force, stated, "We are determined to regain the distinction for Vane-Calvert as No. 1 in the St. Louis area. With Ruby Cummins on our team, national distribution and recognition is our goal. She is one of the few female executives in paint manufacturing involved in overall operations and sales."

Vane-Calvert, America's oldest mixed-paint company, is a member of Colorizer Associates, producers of the most modern and complete color system today, consisting of more than 1,700 colors.

Mrs. Cummins, the former Ruby Sterling, is a graduate of East Prairie high school. She is the daughter of Doss Sterling and Ada Presson of East Prairie, the sister of Richard Sterling of Sikeston and the daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cummins of East Prairie.

Millions of Americans drink milk every day. But as we shop for it, we are likely to take for granted the generous array of dairy foods we have to choose from.

But let's linger a little, and take a closer look at the dairy case, at the modern, streamlined containers. Do you see and wonder about changes – some of fairly longstanding– that you had not thought much about before?

Do you see more plastic packages for the various milk products than you used to? And have you been buying your milk in the store instead of having it delivered to your home?

When you stop to think about it, consumer milk packagings have been changing lately, and for a number of years. So have milk distribution methods.

From time to time the Dairy Division of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service looks into and reports on the continuing changes in the milk packing field.

It surveys the sizes and types of milk containers being used by milk dealers doing business in federal milk marketing order areas. It also reports on any changes in how milk is distributed in reaching consumers.

The most recent survey, made in all federal milk order markets across the nation during November 1969, bore out that three significant trends seen in earlier studies are continuing and intensifying.

More and more the dairy industry is changing over from glass milk bottles to the use of paper and plastic milk containers; from small to larger milk containers; and from home deliveries of milk to increased wholesale sales. The latter includes consumer packaged milk sold by milk processing plants to large retail outlets, and also sales to restaurants and institutional feeders, both privately and government-operated.

An important influence in the trend away from glass bottles to use of paper and other single service containers has been the increase in fluid milk sales through retail stores. Single service containers enable consumers and retail store operators to eliminate bottle deposits and the task of returning empties. The opaque paper container, disposable, lighter in weight than glass, and improved to be more leakproof than they were at first, rapidly increased in use. The survey showed they have continued to increase in use, accounting for about 77 percent of all fluid milk sales.

Some glass milk bottles, now square in shape for easier and space-saving storage, are still being used, but overall their use has decreased. Now for the first time, the survey showed, glass bottles no longer predominate as a container for home-delivered milk.

A psychological factor in the use of glass had been the visibility of the creamline, once a consumer gauge of milk quality and desirability. The trend away from glass bottles has been accelerated by the development and growth of the milk homogenization process. This process breaks down the milkfat globules so they are evenly distributed and do not rise to the top of the container as cream.

Thus, there is no creamline, and being able to see the milk becomes less important. Homogenized milk was successfully marketed initially in Connecticut in 1919. Through the years it has grown steadily in favor until today most milk is homogenized.

More recent developments of some significance have been a changeover from wax-coated to plastic-coated paper cartons, and the emerging importance of plastic bottles. First reported in the Pacific Northwest in 1964, use of plastic containers for dairy items has spread throughout the country, but is most prominent in the southern and pacific regions.

While milk container materials in popular use have been getting lighter in weight, the container sizes have been getting larger. Quart packages have lost ground to the now predominant half-gallon containers, and gallon size containers are coming into wider use.

At the same time, distribution of milk to consumers through home-deliveries has continued to decline.

64-Year Old Rivalry Battle Tonight

Sikeston high school's grid corps, backed by a large number of Red Peppers and Bleacher Bums, invade Charleston Bluejay field for a re-kindling of a 64-year old rivalry tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Charleston is shooting for its third straight win of the season while the Bulldogs are seeking their first victory. SHS holds a 55-25-3 edge over their neighbors.

This rivalry goes all the way back to the year 1908 when the first game between the two schools was played. Sikeston was the winner in that one by the score of 10-5 as touchdowns were counted as five points in those days.

These two teams have always put on a fierce gridiron show as the games are usually marked with hardnose playing by both schools.

As any old rivalry goes, no matter what the records of the two teams are, a victory will add spice to any season record.

Sikeston has the better of it for the last 22 years as they have only dropped two games between the two teams since 1948.

The Bulldogs will be trying to avenge a 7-0 loss suffered last year when they were riddled with injuries and won only one game all year.

The Bulldogs will have three starters out of the game tonight due to injuries suffered against the Perryville Pirates in a 14-13 loss last Friday night.

Starting halfback Curtis Bean will be unable to answer the bell due to a broken ankle. Jessie Smith has a shoulder problem and Bob Walker has a turned ankle. Also missing from the game will be Robert Reynolds with a leg injury and Rick LaPlant who has a bruised leg.

"We are in as good a shape as ever and the injuries aren't the cause of poor physical conditions", said coach Bill Friday. "We have been working on pass defense and our boys will do a good job," commented the coach.

The Charleston Bluejays of coach Howard Suiter will be at top physical shape for the game and the team would like nothing more than to knock off the Bulldogs for the second straight year which they haven't done for quite some time.

Charleston would seem to have the advantage as they have won their first two games with impressive credentials both offensively and defensively.

They crushed Hayti 45-0 and Knocked off Kansas City manual 18-6.

The Bluejays have one of the top passers in the conference and all southeast Missouri in Dan Defield. Defield has already passed for five touchdowns in two games, two against Hayti and three last week against Kansas City Manual.

Charleston has a good receiving corps in Tom Putnam, who has been on the receiving end of two scoring strikes by Defield and Aubrey Cassell, a 6-3 end.

The Bulldogs have played well with both their opponents only to lose due to costly errors.

"They're the best team we've played so far," said Coach Suiter earlier this week.

The Probable starting lineups will be, for Charleston: Ends, Aubrey Cassell (6-3 senior) and Kenny Jackson (6-0 senior) guards, Clay Shelby (6-0 senior) and Bobby Coon (5-11 senior) center, Dennis Quertermous (5-11 senior) running backs, Robert Clark (5-10 senior) Dale Mitchell (5-10 senior) Tommy Putnam (6-0 junior) quarterback, Danny Defield (5-11 senior)

Giants Take 3-Game Lead

(Editors: Because of a light schedule, only one baseball roundup will be filed this morning) Baseball Rdp

By KEN RARRPOPRT

Associated Press Sports Writer

Break up the San Francisco Giants ... and wake up the Los Angeles Dodgers.

With just a week to go in the nervous National League West race, it appears the Dodgers need a more-than-giant effort to catch front-running San Francisco.

"I don't think Los Angeles can overcome their lead," said Houston Manager Harry Walker after the Giants knocked off his Astros 2-1 Thursday night and took a reasonably-comfotable three-game lead.

You know, he could be right? Each team has six games left and any combination of four San Francisco victories or Los Angeles defeats will hand the Giants their first title since 1962, when they won the National League pennant.

"This victory has got to be a big break for us," said Gaylord Perry, the big San Francisco right-hander who pitched a stunning three-hitter. "Especially big in the Astrodome, where we haven't won much the last few years."

Perry's power pitching followed a superlative performance by Juan Marichal, who spun a six-hit, one-run job Wednesday night.

It gave hope to the Giants' stretch run .s5

"Those two can win it for us," said Manager Charlie Fox of the Giants. "Pitching is the name of the game."

In the other National League, games the Pittsburgh Pirates bounced the St. Louis Cardinals 5-0; the New York Mets beat the Chicago Cubs 5-4 and the Philadelphia Phillies tripped the Montreal Expos 6-4.

The Chicago White Sox whitewashed the California Angles 50 and the Oakland A's nipped the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 in American League games.

Winning in the Astrodome not only boosted the Giants' lead in the West, but also gave them a piritual lift. They had won only five of 30 games at Houston before winning two of thebwin4reegame set.

The two straight victories, incidentally, composed San Francisco's longest winning streak since early September before the Giants started a slide that cost them most of a once-commanding 8½-game lead over the Dodgers.

"It's been a tough two weeksewnb, us," said Perry. "We got together and talked about tonight's game. We wanted to make sure everyone talked it up on the bench and made the plays on the field."

"Things are just going the Giants' way now,' said Walker.

Things went their way right away Thursday night when often-injured Willie McCovey smashed his 18th home run in the fourth inning to give the Giants a 1-0 lead. They scored the winning run when McCovey was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded, forcing in a fifthinning tally.

Former Mate Beats Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Nelson Briles thinks he may be ready for re-emergence as a front-line National League pitcher at the ripe old age of 28.

The stocky right-hander, a 19game winner for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1968, Thursday night made his third start in three weeks as a Pittsburgh Pirate and handcuffed the Cards 5-0 on six hits.

"I think that's as good as I've ever seen him throw," said Cards manager Red Schoendienst following Briles' three-strikeout, no-walk performance.

"Nellie's always been a competitor and he's pitched some good games," Schoendienst added, "but tonight he had control of every pitch he threw."

Briles, boosting his record to 8-4 as an infrequent Pirates starter, was tapped for doubles off the bats of hot-hitting Joe Torre and Jose Cruz and otherwise for four singles.

"I didn't want to walk anybody once we got the lead," the former Cardinal said. "With a guy like Torre to face, all you try to do is keep the guy in front of him off base."

A palm ball acquired at midseason in 1970 and control of his fast ball sufficed for Briles after another ex-Cardinal, Vic Davalillo, got the Pirates on top in the first inning.

Briles singled in the middle of a cluster of singles producing another Pittsburgh run in the second, then Willie Stargell teed off on Cards starter Reggie Cleveland (12-12) for a tworun homer his 46th of the year, in the fifth.

"The palm ball was something I started working on last year," Briles said. "I 'd tried all ways of throwing the changeup and hadn't been able to come up with it.

"The pitch does two things; you have the speed deception plus the movement of the ball."

Briles, who start was only his 13th of the season. lowered his earned-run average to 2.91 with the triumph and expressed an eagerness to leave the Pirates' bullpen.

"You've got to stay ready," he said, "because you never know when the gate's going to open. Sometimes it opens only once a season."

THURSDAY'S STARS

PITCHING - Gaylord Perry, Giants, pitched a three-hitter to lead San Francisco to a 2-1 triumph over the Houston Astros.

Volunteers Face Tough Passing

By BERT ROSENTHAL Associated Press Sports Writer

Bill Battle, Tennessee football coach, says he is fully aware of the capabilities of Auburn's deadly passing combination of Pat Sullivan to Terry Beasley.

"But we can't afford to concentrage on them alone," said Battle as he prepared to send his ninth-ranked Volunteers against the fifth-ranked Tigers in one of Saturday's key matchups.

"We know that the SullivanBeasley combination will give us a lot of trouble," added Battle. "But Auburn can give us other trouble as well."

Despite Battle's comments, the result of thegame should hinge on Tennessee's ability to contain Sullivan, the nation's total offense leader last season, and Beasley, the leading scorer in the Southeastern Conference in 1970.

Sullivan, who completed 59 per cent of his passes last year in leading Auburn to a 9-2 record, got off to an even better start in 1971, completing 13 of 16 aerials, including two for touchdowns, as the Tigers opened their season with a 60-7 rout over UT-Chattanooga.

Tennessee, 11-1 last year, also began its 1971 campaign with a romp, crushing UC-Santa Barbara 48-6. The Volunteers only setback last season was a 36-23 beating by Auburn. Naturally, they will be looking for revenge.

Another confrontation between two members of the Top Ten Saturday will be No. 10 Colorado at Ohio State, ranked sixth.

Meanwhile, the other members of the elite also will see action. Top-rated Nebraska will entertain Texas A&M. Notre Dame, No. 2 will be at Purdue. Third-ranked Texas will be home against Southwest Conference rival Texas Tech.

Michigan, No. 4 will be host to UCLA, Arkansas, rates seventh, plays Tulsa in Fayetteville, Ark, and Alabama, ranked eighth, visits Florida.

64-Year Old Rivalry Battle Tonight

Sikeston high school's grid corps, backed by a large number of Red Peppers and Bleacher Bums, invade Charleston Bluejay field for a re-kindling of a 64-year old rivalry tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Charleston is shooting for its third straight win of the season while the Bulldogs are seeking their first victory. SHS holds a 55-25-3 edge over their neighbors.

This rivalry goes all the way back to the year 1908 when the first game between the two schools was played. Sikeston was the winner in that one by the score of 10-5 as touchdowns were counted as five points in those days.

These two teams have always put on a fierce gridiron show as the games are usually marked with hardnose playing by both schools.

As any old rivalry goes, no matter what the records of the two teams are, a victory will add spice to any season record.

Sikeston has the better of it for the last 22 years as they have only dropped two games between the two teams since 1948.

The Bulldogs will be trying to avenge a 7-0 loss suffered last year when they were riddled with injuries and won only one game all year.

The Bulldogs will have three starters out of the game tonight due to injuries suffered against the Perryville Pirates in a 14-13 loss last Friday night.

Starting halfback Curtis Bean will be unable to answer the bell due to a broken ankle. Jessie Smith has a shoulder problem and Bob Walker has a turned ankle. Also missing from the game will be Robert Reynolds with a leg injury and Rick LaPlant who has a bruised leg.

"We are in as good a shape as ever and the injuries aren't the cause of poor physical conditions", said coach Bill Friday. "We have been working on pass defense and our boys will do a good job," commented the coach.

The Charleston Bluejays of coach Howard Suiter will be at top physical shape for the game and the team would like nothing more than to knock off the Bulldogs for the second straight year which they haven't done for quite some time.

Charleston would seem to have the advantage as they have won their first two games with impressive credentials both offensively and defensively.

They crushed Hayti 45-0 and Knocked off Kansas City manual 18-6.

The Bluejays have one of the top passers in the conference and all southeast Missouri in Dan Defield. Defield has already passed for five touchdowns in two games, two against Hayti and three last week against Kansas City Manual.

Charleston has a good receiving corps in Tom Putnam, who has been on the receiving end of two scoring strikes by Defield and Aubrey Cassell, a 6-3 end.

The Bulldogs have played well with both their opponents only to lose due to costly errors.

"They're the best team we've played so far," said Coach Suiter earlier this week.

The Probable starting lineups will be, for Charleston: Ends, Aubrey Cassell (6-3 senior) and Kenny Jackson (6-0 senior) guards, Clay Shelby (6-0 senior) and Bobby Coon (5-11 senior) center, Dennis Quertermous (5-11 senior) running backs, Robert Clark (5-10 senior) Dale Mitchell (5-10 senior) Tommy Putnam (6-0 junior) quarterback, Danny Defield (5-11 senior)

Giants Take 3-Game Lead

(Editors: Because of a light schedule, only one baseball roundup will be filed this morning) Baseball Rdp

Associated Press Sports Writer

Break up the San Francisco Giants ... and wake up the Los Angeles Dodgers.

With just a week to go in the nervous National League West race, it appears the Dodgers need a more-than-giant effort to catch front-running San Francisco.

"I don't think Los Angeles can overcome their lead," said Houston Manager Harry Walker after the Giants knocked off his Astros 2-1 Thursday night and took a reasonably-comfotable three-game lead.

You know, he could be right? Each team has six games left and any combination of four San Francisco victories or Los Angeles defeats will hand the Giants their first title since 1962, when they won the National League pennant.

"This victory has got to be a big break for us," said Gaylord Perry, the big San Francisco right-hander who pitched a stunning three-hitter. "Especially big in the Astrodome, where we haven't won much the last few years."

Perry's power pitching followed a superlative performance by Juan Marichal, who spun a six-hit, one-run job Wednesday night.

It gave hope to the Giants' stretch run .s5

"Those two can win it for us," said Manager Charlie Fox of the Giants. "Pitching is the name of the game."

In the other National League, games the Pittsburgh Pirates bounced the St. Louis Cardinals 5-0; the New York Mets beat the Chicago Cubs 5-4 and the Philadelphia Phillies tripped the Montreal Expos 6-4.

The Chicago White Sox whitewashed the California Angles 50 and the Oakland A's nipped the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 in American League games.

Winning in the Astrodome not only boosted the Giants' lead in the West, but also gave them a piritual lift. They had won only five of 30 games at Houston before winning two of thebwinreegame set.

The two straight victories, incidentally, composed San Francisco's longest winning streak since early September before the Giants started a slide that cost them most of a once-commanding 8½-game lead over the Dodgers.

"It's been a tough two weeksewnb, us," said Perry. "We got together and talked about tonight's game. We wanted to make sure everyone talked it up on the bench and made the plays on the field."

"Things are just going the Giants' way now,' said Walker.

Things went their way right away Thursday night when often-injured Willie McCovey smashed his 18th home run in the fourth inning to give the Giants a 1-0 lead. They scored the winning run when McCovey was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded, forcing in a fifthinning tally.

Former Mate Beats Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Nelson Briles thinks he may be ready for re-emergence as a front-line National League pitcher at the ripe old age of 28.

The stocky right-hander, a 19game winner for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1968, Thursday night made his third start in three weeks as a Pittsburgh Pirate and handcuffed the Cards 5-0 on six hits.

"I think that's as good as I've ever seen him throw," said Cards manager Red Schoendienst following Briles' three-strikeout, no-walk performance.

"Nellie's always been a competitor and he's pitched some good games," Schoendienst added, "but tonight he had control of every pitch he threw."

Briles, boosting his record to 8-4 as an infrequent Pirates starter, was tapped for doubles off the bats of hot-hitting Joe Torre and Jose Cruz and otherwise for four singles.

"I didn't want to walk anybody once we got the lead," the former Cardinal said. "With a guy like Torre to face, all you try to do is keep the guy in front of him off base."

A palm ball acquired at midseason in 1970 and control of his fast ball sufficed for Briles after another ex-Cardinal, Vic Davalillo, got the Pirates on top in the first inning.

Briles singled in the middle of a cluster of singles producing another Pittsburgh run in the second, then Willie Stargell teed off on Cards starter Reggie Cleveland (12-12) for a tworun homer his 46th of the year, in the fifth.

"The palm ball was something I started working on last year," Briles said. "I 'd tried all ways of throwing the changeup and hadn't been able to come up with it.

"The pitch does two things; you have the speed deception plus the movement of the ball."

Briles, who start was only his 13th of the season. lowered his earned-run average to 2.91 with the triumph and expressed an eagnerness to leave the Pirates' bullpen.

"You've got to stay ready," he said, "because you never know when the gate's going to open. Sometimes it opens only once a season."

Volunteers Face Tough Passing

By BERT ROSENTHAL Associated Press Sports Writer

Bill Battle, Tennessee football coach, says he is fully aware of the capabilities of Auburn's deadly passing combination of Pat Sullivan to Terry Beasley.

"But we can't afford to concentrage on them alone," said Battle as he prepared to send his ninth-ranked Volunteers against the fifth-ranked Tigers in one of Saturday's key matchups.

"We know that the SullivanBeasley combination will give us a lot of trouble," added Battle. "But Auburn can give us other trouble as well."

Despite Battle's comments, the result of thegame should hinge on Tennessee's ability to contain Sullivan, the nation's total offense leader last season, and Beasley, the leading scorer in the Southeastern Conference in 1970.

Sullivan, who completed 59 per cent of his passes last year in leading Auburn to a 9-2 record, got off to an even better start in 1971, completing 13 of 16 aerials, including two for touchdowns, as the Tigers opened their season with a 60-7 rout over UT-Chattanooga.

Tennessee, 11-1 last year, also began its 1971 campaign with a romp, crushing UC-Santa Barbara 48-6. The Volunteers only setback last season was a 36-23 beating by Auburn. Naturally, they will be looking for revenge.

Another confrontation between two members of the Top Ten Saturday will be No. 10 Colorado at Ohio State, ranked sixth.

Meanwhile, the other members of the elite also will see action. Top-rated Nebraska will entertain Texas A&M. Notre Dame, No. 2 will be at Purdue. Third-ranked Texas will be home against Southwest Conference rival Texas Tech.

Michigan, No. 4 will be host to UCLA, Arkansas, rates seventh, plays Tulsa in Fayetteville, Ark, and Alabama, ranked eighth, visits Florida.

Among the second 10, it will be Oklahoma, No. 11 at Pitt; Penn State, ranked 12th, at Iowa; Stanford, rated 13th, at home against Oregon; Georgia, No. 14, at Clemson; 15th-ranked Arizona State at Utah; 16thrated Southern California at home against Illinois in a night game; No. 17 Washington against visiting Texas Christian; Louisiana State, ranked 18th, at Wisconsin; Toledo, rated 19th, at Texas-Arlington in a night game, and No. 20 Duke at Virginia.

Antitrust Probe On Major Sports

WASHINGTON (AP) — After hearing charges that professional football, baseball and basketball have become big business monopolies, a Congressional subcommittee has decided to conduct an antitrust probe into all major team sports.

A senate judiciary subcommittee examining a professional basketball merger bill heard three days of testimony this week that the three sports have enjoyed special tax breaks and no government regulation.

Thursday, acting chairman Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. D-N.C., told his staff to start gathering material and a broader list of witnesses for the resumption of the hearings Nov. 9-11.

"Orginized sports asks to be treated as monopoly ," said Sen. William B. Spong Jr. DVa., while appearing before the committee Thursday.

Spong said he is "disturbed by the growing domination of the field by big business interests and big business psychology."

He added that "there is serious question about the claim of organized sport to special consideration under the antitrust laws and its right to other forms of public support it receives."

Ervin, the Senate's constitutional watchdog, had earlier warned that if the basketball merger bill passes, he would propose creation of the post of federal athletic commissioner to regulate all major professional sports—baseball, football, hockey and basketball.

Because all professional sports except baseball fall under the antitrust laws, the American and National basketball association are seeking a temporary exemption to merge.

YOU BE THE QUARTERBACK

By Paul (Bear) Bryant
Head Coach, University of Alabama
Compliments of
Wal—Mart Discount Center

You are the defensive quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys against Philadelphia. You have a fine group of veteran linebackers, who are smaller than the linebackers of the usual N.F. L. team. In your game plan against the Eagles should you:

1. Blitz (rush at ball snap) more than the usual pro team to compensate for size?
2. Blitz less?
3. Blitz about the same as the usual pro team?
4. Never blitz?

Answer

No. 2. Blitz less. Pro backs protecting agains blitz are big and hard to run over. Your speed is more effectively used elsewhere in defense. If you never blitzed, defense would be too predictable. One Dallas linebacker is LeeRoy Jordan, who played for us at Alabama. He's not the biggest but was one of our best ever.

A.P. Sports Expert Off On Predictions

NEW YORK (AP) — The string of upsets that sent favorites reeling in the National Football League last week likelys will continue this week with Atlanta harassing Roman Gabriel and Los Angeles into submission while O.J. Simpson ejwpoopn)-oose for Buffalo in an upset of Miami.

But remember, those predictions are being made by the same guy who last week correctly predicted Atlanta to upset San Francisco—and not much else. The record, as a matter of record, was 4-8-1, for the opening week's program.

The problem this week is being able to determine which of last week's upset winners are legitimate threats and which are merely pretenders. The guessing is that the Falcons are for real and the Bills, who showed plenty of offense against Dallas, are substantially stronger.

Here's the way it looks like it might go with a 12-game program Sunday followed by Monday night's nationally televised game between the New York Jets and St. Louis being shown by ABC starting at 9 p.m., EDT:

Atlanta 27, Los Angeles 20— QB Bob Berry has a new target in rookie Ken Burros, and the Falcons have the defense to harass Gabriel, who completed just 11 of 30 passes against New Orleans. The Falcons may not have the depth to go all the way but right now they're solid.

Buffalo 31, Miami 27—Dallas watched O.J. last week and Dennis Shaw passed for four TDs. The Dolphins will probably be watching Shaw this week. So watch O.J. The key, however, will be the Bills' defense, lacking against Dallas in last week's 49-37 loss.

Baltimore 28, Cleveland 17— Browns' QB Bill Nelsen picked apart Houston last week but the Colts' zone defense is something else. So apparently is running back Norm Bulaich. The Colts aren't flashy but they win.

Minnesota 35, Chicago 10— The only danger here is that the Vikings may take the Bears too lightly. But spartan Coach Bud Grant will see to it they don't. Even if Gale Sayers makes it back, Chicago doesn't have enough to match the powerful Vikes.

Oakland 27, San Diego 24— The Raiders likely took New England too lightly last week but there's no way they can feel that way about the Chargers after San Diego's victory over Kansas City.

Washington 34, New York Giants 27—The Giants don't figure to score twice on fumbles within six seconds as they did against Green Bay. Larry Brown will give the Redskins the ball control they need.

Cincinnati 21, Pittsburgh 20— The Steelers could upset, but with No. 1 runring back John Fuqua doubtful the Bengals should be able to contain Pittsburgh QB Terry Bradshaw.

Dallas 41, Philadelphia 21— Whether it's Craig Morton or Roger Staubach at quarterback, the Cowboys will run wild against Eagle defense that permitted 532 yards in loss to Bengals.

Detroit 48, New England 13— The Lions should be aroused after tough loss to Minnesota, which means trouble for the Patriots and Jim Plunkett. Plunkett gets plunked—often.

San Francisco 38, New Orleans 21—John Brodie doesn't through four interceptions every week, and that's the only way the Saints can beat the 49ers. Archie Manning also gets plunked—often.

Denver 30, Green Bay 17— The Broncos' front four will push either Zeke Bratkowski or Scott Hunter all over the field. Green Bay Coach Dan Devine better watch his other leg.

Kansas City 24, Houston 21— The Chiefs can't get their offense rolling, but they should be able to handle the Oilers, who appeared totally disorganized in Cleveland shutout.

NEW CHRYSLER BOWS INTO EXPANDING CAR MARKET

DETROIT. . . . The 1972 Chrysler, the company's nameplate car, enters an expanding medium-priced marketplace with a new look and a number of engineering improvements.

Richard D. McLaughlin, Chrysler-Plymouth genereal sales manager, predicted an 11 percent sales gain in this area for 1972, based upon the surprising sales performance of the medium- priced cars in 1971.

The Newport Royal, the new low-line version, had a good sales trend during the year, running from 4.5 percent of sales to 25 percent of total Chrysler car sales by spring.

"This increased public interest evidenced in medium-priced cars and our new-look styling should combine to provide increased sales for 1972," McLaughlin said.

The Chrysler car line will have a simplified model lineup for 1972 while taking advantage of the current public buying trends in medium-priced automobiles.

HIGH LINE NEW YORKER

Marketing plans call for a concentration on two well established names - Newport and New Yorker - while continuing the very popular Town and Country station wagon. The Three Hundred model will be dropped. The wheelbase remains at 124 inches.

The highly successful Newport Royal and Newport Custom will be continued. A separate premium line New Yorker Brougham will be added to that well established model lineup.

All Chrysler car line models will be available in two and four-door hardtops and four-door sedans with the Town and Country wagon available in both two and three-seat versions.

The New Yorker Brougham model will have upgraded interior trims and certain optional equipment made standard.

The position of the Chrysler New Yorker and the New Yorker Brougham series will be strengthened for 1972 with greater distinction over the Newport entries, particularly in front and rear end appearance.

The engine lineup for the Chrylser models will feature a new 400-cubic-inch engine as standard equipment in the Newport Custom and Town and Country wagon. The 440-cubic-inch V8 will be standard in the Newport Royal.

NEW STYLE AND ENGINEERING

The Chrysler Torqueflite automatic transmission, front wheel power disc brakes and power steering are some of the standard equipment items on all Chrysler models.

The styling on the new Chrysler line of cars for 1972 is fresh and attractive. It is considered "evolutionary" by stylists.

Chrysler car line stylists said the new sheet metal and roof lines build on a very successful image . . . a low and sleek profile. The rear track has been increased 1.4 inches, enchancing the low, wide appearance of the 1972 models.

The New Yorker receives separate protective side moulding treatment and ornamentation as well as front and rear end design idstinction.

The New Yorker receives separate protective side moulding treatment and ornamentaiton as well as front and rear end design distinction.

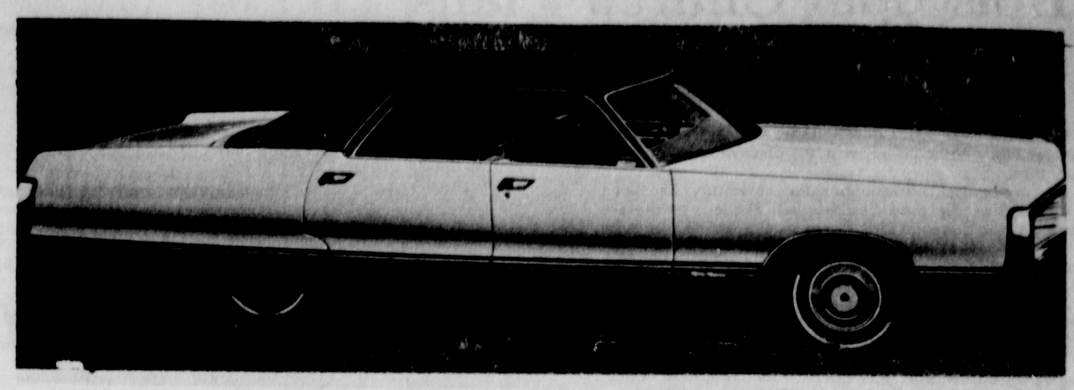

The New Yorker grille features a central design theme set within a full wrap-around bumper. The Newport grille is a multi-cavity design with a vertical bar set into the bumper. All front bumpers have a center division bar for added protection.

The rear of the New Yorker models is distinguished by full-width tail and backup lamps located within the full-depth bumper to maximize protection.

The Newport features vertical taillamps nestled into the bumper enchancing the identity as well as the form.

The interiors of the Chrysler car line entries for 1972 have been improved with innovation in design and materials.

A "hardtop design" for tailgate-doors on the wagons allows the rear door to be opened without rolling down the window.

LUXURY LEADER -- The New Yorker Brougham is a new luxury leader for Chrysler in 1972. New Yorker and Brougham in 4 - door sedan, and 2 and 4 - door hardtops. Standard on Brougham: 50-50 split bench seats, power windows. On both: power steering, power front disc brakes and automatic transmission.

Antitrust Probe On Major Sports

WASHINGTON (AP) — After hearing charges that professional football, baseball and basketball have become big business monopolies, a Congressional subcommittee has decided to conduct an antitrust probe into all major team sports.

A senate judiciary subcommittee examining a professional basketball merger bill heard three days of testimony this week that the three sports have enjoyed special tax breaks and no government regulation.

Thursday, acting chairman Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. D-N.C., told his staff to start gathering material and a broader list of witnesses for the resumption of the hearings Nov. 9-11.

"Orginized sports asks to be treated as monopoly ," said Sen. William B. Spong Jr. DVa., while appearing before the committee Thursday.

Spong said he is "disturbed by the growing domination of the field by big business interests and big business psychology."

He added that "there is serious question about the claim of organized sport to special consideration under the antitrust laws and its right to other forms of public support it receives."

Ervin, the Senate's constitutional watchdog, had earlier warned that if the basketball merger bill passes, he would propose creation of the post of federal athletic commissioner to regulate all major professional sports—baseball, football, hockey and basketball.

Because all professional sports except baseball fall under the antitrust laws, the American and National basketball association are seeking a temporary exemption to merge.

YOU BE THE QUARTERBACK

By Paul (Bear) Bryant
Head Coach, University of Alabama
Compliments of
Wal—Mart Discount Center

You are the defensive quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys against Philadelphia. You have a fine group of veteran linebackers, who are smaller than the linebackers of the usual N.F. L. team. In your game plan against the Eagles should you:

1. Blitz (rush at ball snap) more than the usual pro team to compensate for size?
2. Blitz less?
3. Blitz about the same as the usual pro team?
4. Never blitz?

Answer

No. 2. Blitz less. Pro backs protecting agains blitz are big and hard to run over. Your speed is more effectively used elsewhere in defense. If you never blitzed, defense would be too predictable. One Dallas linebacker is LeeRoy Jordan, who played for us at Alabama. He's not the biggest but was one of our best ever.

Episcopal Church Plans To Burn Mortgage Sunday

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, under the direction of the Rev. W.Pipes Jones, vicar, will be consecrated Sunday at 4:30 p.m.

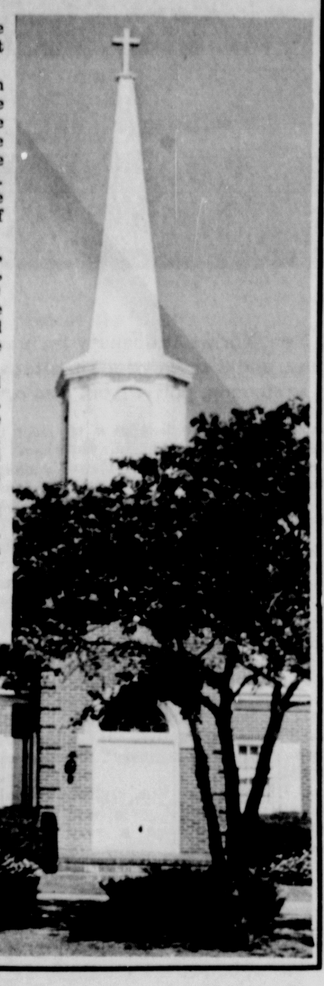

An impressive mortgage-burning ceremony has been planned. Mrs. Kenneth Smitten will render appropriate music on the harp and Mrs. James Handy Moore will serve as organist. Much of the service will be taken from the combined service of the laying of the conerstone and the dedication service which took place in September 1952.

All debts and encumbrances have been settled, and the Ven. Charles Rehkopf, secretary of the Diocese of Missouri, will receive the deed.

The Rt. Rev. George L. Cadigan, bishop of Missouri, will be the consecrator; and the Rt. Rev. Girault M. Jones, retired bishop of Louisiana and currently chancellor of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., will be the speaker. The Rev. William Chapman, former vicar, will assist Vicar Jones. A number of clergy from the diocese will also participate.

Construction of St. Paul's began with the ground breaking ceremony on Feb. 25, 1952. It was soon erected, though in 1956 a bolt of lightening and fire razed the building. It was rebuilt and the Parish Hall was added. Before the first building was erected, services were held in the Dunn Hotel and in the old Presbyterian Church which was located near the International Shoe Factory.

St. Paul's construction is of simple Georgian style and was built under the directon of Paul Buchmueller, architect. It lies just north of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital. The public is invited to attend.

Is now the time to buy land?

Acquiring that new farm without delay might seem more practical if you considered the benefits of financing through the Federal Land Bank. Today's expensive land is easier to pay for when its cost is amortized over extra years with a long-term Land Bank Loan. Your total cost of borrowing, too, can be less with a Land Bank loan.

As your local Land Bank Association, we offer a complete loan service: We know current land values; we will inspect the property being considered. We will examine your overall plans and resources, and make an income projection. We will then make a loan recommendation that fits your needs precisely and, whenever possible, provide the capital it takes to meet your goals.

Bishops' Synod To Discuss Celibacy

NEW YORK (AP) — On touchy problems, the Roman Catholic Church edges up on them, by stops and starts, by pulling back, then moving ahead again, by partial, tentative steps that often eventually become the norm.

That pattern was discernible this week as the Church's leaders prepared to gather in Rome for an international Synod of Bishops beginning next Thursday.

They'll take up, for full-scale analysis, a bristling subject that until recently was banned from their official discussion— the requirement of celibacy for priests.

Although Pope Paul VI has authorized consideration only of the possibility of ordaining some married men in areas of acute need, taking up that limited aspect, in effect, opens up the whole celibacy question.

This now is the clear prospect, as urged by several national hierarchies, including those of Canada, Japan, the Netherlands, and as highlighted in preparatory studies made for U.S. bishops.

Only last year, after the Dutch bishops called for a full airing of the topic, Pope Paul issued a letter, saying priestly celibacy is an essential law of the Church and "it cannot be subjected to argument."

But as ferment over the matter swelled, he tempered his stand to make room for bringing up the subject under the question of whether to permit, in special circumstances, ordination to the priesthood of some married men.

If this is done, as is widely expected, it still wouldn't give already ordained priests the option to marry, nor would it allow those who have left the ministry to marry the right to return to it.

But it would be a related step in that direction. And this is the way, by cautious, limited adjustments that the Church often gets where it is going.

As a recent example, when the Second Vatican Council of 1962-65 authorized the ordaining of married men as permanent deacons, a rank just elow the priesthood, it was done to meet particular shortages of clergy in Asia and Africa.

Corner On Questions

By PASTOR DON WILSON

QUESTION: DID JESUS WEAR LONG HAIR?

ANSWER: "Dear Abby" often answers questions reasonably; however, to say that because of His long hair Jesus would be rejected by society today, Miss Van Buren exhibits definite limitations. While men today have not seen Jesus, neither did they who painted His picture. Indeed, Jesus would be rejected by society today, but not because of long hair. Rather, because He is the LIGHT OF THE WORLD. Scripture asserts: "Light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil."

The God of the Word cannot contradict the Word of God. Scripture says: "Doth not even nature itself teach you, that, if a man have LONG HAIR, it is a SHAME unto him? But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her." While men naturally become bald, women continually glory in long hair. Isaiah's prophecy: "There is no beauty that we should desire Him," further substantiates that Jesus probably wore short hair. Artists portray an effeminate Christ, but Scripture confirms no one would be jealous of Him.

Under no circumstances would Jesus wear long hair today! The radical subversive, Jerry Rubin, says: "Young kids identify short hair with authority, discipline, unhappiness, boredom, rigidity, hatred of life -- and long hair with letting go. Wherever we go, our hair tells people where we stand on Vietnam, Wallace, campus disruption, dope. We're living TV commercials for the revolution. Long hair is the beginning of our liberation from the sexual oppression that underlies the whole military society."

Not with revolution, but with transformation is Jesus identified. Morality and righteousness are synonymous with Christ. Sin is vile and detestable to Him. Christians are transformed sinners and God promises: "If any man be IN CHRIST, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."

RLDS Church Voices Disfavor

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Opposition to the Missouri constitutional amendment to allow parimutuel betting has been expressed by leaders of the Central States of the Reorganized Latter Day Saints Church.

Church leaders who announced their opposition Monday said gambling is ultimately detrimental to individual and family life as well as the spiritual life of the community.

Rev. Jones New Pastor Of Bertrand Church

Scripture: Psalms 73
Ephesians 1
GOD GIVES MEANING TO LIFE

The suffering of the righteous and the prosperity of the wicked present problems that have disturbed the believers of God for centuries.

Today's passages from Psalms 73 reflect on this situation. It remains pertinent today. In the earlier verses, the psalmist is a pessimist, tempted to turn from God. Later he becomes an optimist.

Life is like this, as one switches from being a pessimist to being an optimist. Our moods are determined by the role God plays in our daily lives.

Millions of individuals go through the motion of living, yet many lack any real meaning in their day-to-day activities. This can be seen by the many letters written to newspaper columnists by those searching for some meaning and some goal for their existence.

Others lacking any real objectives in life turn to psychiatrists for help. Unfortunatley not enough turn to the Bible for guidance from God.

Many persons are tempted to turn from God when they need Him most. The pessimist tells us "The Most High neither knows nor cares. So wicked men talk, yet they still prosper and rogues amass great wealth."

Such incidents as the psalmist observed exist today. Some insecure believers are tempted to seek new gods, although the true followers of God wrestle with the problems probing for logical reasons behind their difficulties.

In Ephesians Paul tells how God reconciled our differences by bringing unity through Christ. In other words, we find God's purpose for us revealed through Christ.

What, then, is the meaning of life? With the mad pace so many of us experience ,we seldom take time to ask where we are heading. Too many fail to find a purpose to direct our actions.

The problems are simple while all goes well. In times of sickness or depression, the challege becomes greater.

Unfortunately, many believe that God automatically will solve all problems for those who believe in Him. Yet there is no promise in the Bible for a life paved only with goodness and prosperity.

God's children suffer as others suffer. Those with little faith cry out, "Where is my God?" when they suffer adversity. There are no easy-to-comprehend answers for sufferers.

Jesus seemed to sanction suffering for He said "Blessed are those who mourn for they shall be comforted." To the sufferers life still had meaning since they had God to guide them Each person requires a purpose in life, a meaning for his existence. No one expects a road without any detours or accidents to slow his pace.

Suffering will remain with us. As we discover cures for our present illnesses we will encounter new problems in our crowded environment.

But if we have faith of the psalmist and the assurance of Paul we will find the guiding hand of God beside us as we strive to reach out goal.

The POWER of FAITH

BY WOODI ISHMAEL

When faith is misguided or used for self interest it is doomed to failure. This has been seen many times in the course of history.

The Rev. John Alexander Dowie was a man with misguided faith. Born in Scotland, he was educated for the ministry and became a Congregational minister in Australia. But it didn't suit his purpose and he resigned to form an independent church with emphasis on divine healing.

He came to the United States in 1888 to practice healing and was so well received that he decided to stay. He formed his own "Christian Catholic Church" and in 1901 founded the religious community of Zion, 42 miles from Chicago. It became a thriving town with industry but Dowie held absolute power. He allowed no physicians nor a drug store and of course no tobacco, liquor, dancing or cards.

Overly ambitious and possibly deluded, he set himself up as Elijah II. He was power hungry and decided to extend his domain. His expansion campaign in other parts of the country was too expensive for his church and left it bankrupt. The converts he had left him and John Dowie's dreams of glory and power ended in failure.

Episcopal Church Plans To Burn Mortgage Sunday

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, under the direction of the Rev. W.Pipes Jones, vicar, will be consecrated Sunday at 4:30 p.m.

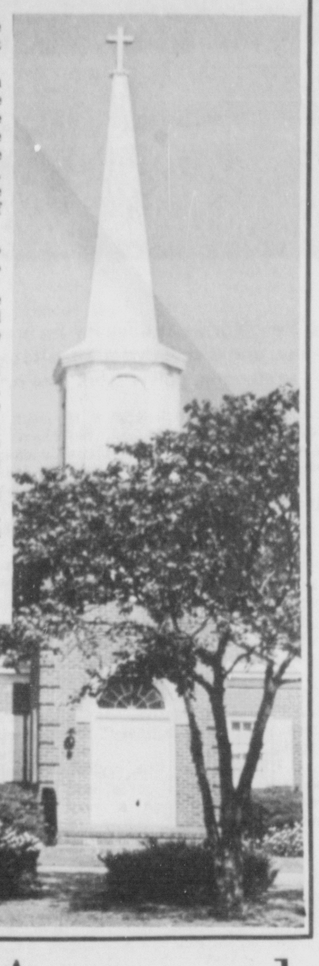

An impressive mortgage-burning ceremony has been planned. Mrs. Kenneth Smitten will render appropriate music on the harp and Mrs. James Handy Moore will serve as organist. Much of the service will be taken from the combined service of the laying of the conerstone and the dedication service which took place in September 1952.

All debts and encumbrances have been settled, and the Ven. Charles Rehkopf, secretary of the Diocese of Missouri, will receive the deed.

The Rt. Rev. George L. Cadigan, bishop of Missouri, will be the consecrator; and the Rt. Rev. Girault M. Jones, retired bishop of Louisiana and currently chancellor of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., will be the speaker. The Rev. William Chapman, former vicar, will assist Vicar Jones. A number of clergy from the diocese will also participate.

Construction of St. Paul's began with the ground breaking ceremony on Feb. 25, 1952. It was soon erected, though in 1956 a bolt of lightening and fire razed the building. It was rebuilt and the Parish Hall was added. Before the first building was erected, services were held in the Dunn Hotel and in the old Presbyterian Church which was located near the International Shoe Factory.

St. Paul's construction is of simple Georgian style and was built under the directon of Paul Buchmueller, architect. It lies just north of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital. The public is invited to attend.

Is now the time to buy land?

Acquiring that new farm without delay might seem more practical if you considered the benefits of financing through the Federal Land Bank. Today's expensive land is easier to pay for when its cost is amortized over extra years with a long-term Land Bank Loan. Your total cost of borrowing, too, can be less with a Land Bank loan.

As your local Land Bank Association, we offer a complete loan service: We know current land values; we will inspect the property being considered. We will examine your overall plans and resources, and make an income projection. We will then make a loan recommendation that fits your needs precisely and, whenever possible, provide the capital it takes to meet your goals.

Bishops' Synod To Discuss Celibacy

NEW YORK (AP) — On touchy problems, the Roman Catholic Church edges up on them, by stops and starts, by pulling back, then moving ahead again, by partial, tentative steps that often eventually become the norm.

That pattern was discernible this week as the Church's leaders prepared to gather in Rome for an international Synod of Bishops beginning next Thursday.

They'll take up, for full-scale analysis, a bristling subject that until recently was banned from their official discussion— the requirement of celibacy for priests.

Although Pope Paul VI has authorized consideration only of the possibility of ordaining some married men in areas of acute need, taking up that limited aspect, in effect, opens up the whole celibacy question.

This now is the clear prospect, as urged by several national hierarchies, including those of Canada, Japan, the Netherlands, and as highlighted in preparatory studies made for U.S. bishops.

Only last year, after the Dutch bishops called for a full airing of the topic, Pope Paul issued a letter, saying priestly celibacy is an essential law of the Church and "it cannot be subjected to argument."

But as ferment over the matter swelled, he tempered his stand to make room for bringing up the subject under the question of whether to permit, in special circumstances, ordination to the priesthood of some married men.

If this is done, as is widely expected, it still wouldn't give already ordained priests the option to marry, nor would it allow those who have left the ministry to marry the right to return to it.

But it would be a related step in that direction. And this is the way, by cautious, limited adjustments that the Church often gets where it is going.

As a recent example, when the Second Vatican Council of 1962-65 authorized the ordaining of married men as permanent deacons, a rank just elow the priesthood, it was done to meet particular shortages of clergy in Asia and Africa.

Corner On Questions

By PASTOR DON WILSON

QUESTION: DID JESUS WEAR LONG HAIR?

ANSWER: "Dear Abby" often answers questions reasonably; however, to say that because of His long hair Jesus would be rejected by society today, Miss Van Buren exhibits definite limitations. While men today have not seen Jesus, neither did they who painted His picture. Indeed, Jesus would be rejected by society today, but not because of long hair. Rather, because He is the LIGHT OF THE WORLD. Scripture asserts: "Light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil."

The God of the Word cannot contradict the Word of God. Scripture says: "Doth not even nature itself teach you, that, if a man have LONG HAIR, it is a SHAME unto him? But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her." While men naturally become bald, women continually glory in long hair. Isaiah's prophecy: "There is no beauty that we should desire Him," further substantiates that Jesus probably wore short hair. Artists portray an effeminate Christ, but Scripture confirms no one would be jealous of Him.

Under no circumstances would Jesus wear long hair today! The radical subversive, Jerry Rubin, says: "Young kids identify short hair with authority, discipline, unhappiness, boredom, rigidity, hatred of life -- and long hair with letting go. Wherever we go, our hair tells people where we stand on Vietnam, Wallace, campus disruption, dope. We're living TV commercials for the revolution. Long hair is the beginning of our liberation from the sexual oppression that underlies the whole military society."

Not with revolution, but with transformation is Jesus identified. Morality and righteousness are synonymous with Christ. Sin is vile and detestable to Him. Christians are transformed sinners and God promises: "If any man be IN CHRIST, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."

CONSUMER BATTLE

A quiet, desperate battle is raging behind the doors of the House Government Operations committee this week over a bill that would establish the strongest consumer agency in the nation's history.

The new agency would test products, report on the results, represent the consumer with other government agencies and draft pro-consumer legislation. But the White House and a coalition of special interests are trying to sabotage the bill.

The focus of the anti-consumer efforts is on crotchety old Chet Holifield, D-Calif., chairman of the committee, who in the past has fought many good battles for the consumer, but who has strangely weakened in his old age.

This summer, President Nixon flew Holifield back home to California on the Luxurious presidential Air Force One. As they crossed the nation, Nixon twisted Holifield's arm.

Thereafter, Holifield secretly ordered his staff to water down the bill even though it had over 170 sponsors in the House. Then Holifield obligingly sent the toothless new measure to the White House.

Word of Holifield's fast shuffle leaked out to consumer advocates. He tried to calm them by saying the new bill was merely a draft.

But behind the closed doors of his committee then squashed a protest by Rep. Ben Rosenthal, D-N.Y., that the committee deliberations should be open to the public because of the importance of the bill.

Even Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., and Majority Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., appealed to Holifield privately, but Holifield tried to put them off by saying he didn't have the votes for a stronger bill.

As time began to run out, Ralph Nader, who has strongly backed the bill, met secretly with Holifield and tried to convince him that the original bill could certainly pass.

But despite his past record, Holifield joined Republicans last Friday to vote a first chink in the strong bill.

Just as surprisingly, Ed Garmatz, D-Md., who sponsored the tough bill and who faces a strong pro-consumer challenge in the primary next spring, turned over his proxy to Holifield.

Flo Dwyer, R-N.J., one of the GOP's most powerful consumer advocates, skipped out on the meeting to attend a shopping center dedication after taking issue with Holifield in a private letter to him. Mrs. Dwyer is senior Republican on the committee.

The infighting in the committee is continuing this week, with the showdown likely to erupt on the House floor if the bill is badly weakened by Holifield's committee.

Henry Bussey Elected President Of Associated Cemeteries Of Missouri

Henry Bussey, Vice president and manager of Memorial Park cemetery in Sikeston, was elected president of the Associated cemeteries of Missouri at the annual business meeting of the association held in Jefferson City September 17, 18 and 19th.

Bussey is recognized as a leading cemeterian in the state. He is also president of Forest Hills Memorial Gardens near Morley and a member of the National Cemetery Association, Washington, D.C. As well as a director of the Central States Cemetery Association which is composed of cemeteries in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Arkansas.

The main purpose of these associations is to help all cemetery members to continually improve cemetery conditions throughout the country which in turn gives the public a place to bury that is not a blight and a burden to their community.

Bussey, at the present time, has two new cemetery sections under development at Memorial Park, Sikeston and Forest Hills, near Morley and families can purchase their cemetery needs on a monthly payment plan.

Number Of Vasectomies Shows Spectacular Rise

CHICAGO (AP) — Make love, not babies.

This seems to be the attitude of the modern American male.

The number of men undergoing vasectomy—the male sterilization operation—has shown a "sensational increase" recently, says John R. Rague, executive director of the Association for Voluntary Sterilization in New York City. He estimated 750,000 American males had vasectomies in 1970. That's up from an estimated 200,000 the year before.

And Rague predicted in an interview that the 1971 figure will be even greater than 1970's.

So far, an estimated three million men in the United States have had sterilization surgery—a simple procedure, done often in the doctor's office in a few minutes. The American male is not alone.

In India, where reduction in the birth rate is a major concern, an estimated 8.2 million men have been sterilized. In Great Britain some 20,000 men underwent vasectomies last year and it is estimated the figure will be double for 1971.

Rague said his association offered $30,000 in October 1969 to any New York hospital which would open a vasectomy clinic. There were no takers. The money went to the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau, which did open such a clinic.

Since then, Rague said, 154 vasectomy clinics have opened in 36 states. Among them are 82 hospitals which do vasectomies in their outpatient departments.

Rague, as well as medical authorities, attributes the recent upsurge in requests for male vasectomies to fears about possible adverse side-effects from the contraceptive pills taken by women.

There is also, he said, "a finer understanding of human sexuality, especially among the young," so that males are willing to take responsibility for preventing pregnancy.

And "the Puritanism which has been a strong influence in the development of the United States" has been declining in the past decade, especially among those under age 30, Rague said.

An obstacle to male sterilization has been the popular misconception that the operation makes the man less masculine, less able to perform sexually.

This is untrue.

In fact a survey by the Association for Voluntary Sterilization of 25,000 men who had had vasectomies found that 85 per cent of the mer felt that their sexual performances was better, 13 per cent felt it was about the same, and 2 per cent felt that it had declined.

In the last group, Rague noted, the aging process could have been a factor.

The male sterilization operation is much simpler and less expensive to perform than that for females, which requires hospitalization.

Bus Bandit Robs Riders Of $650.00

CHICAGO (AP) — It was highway robbery.

A modern-day Jesse James fled with $650 in cash and jewelry—after ordering the driver of the Greyhound bus to retrieve his luggage.

J. L. Kerrigan, president of the bus line, said it was the first time passengers had been robbed while en route.

Police gave this account:

The robber boarded the bus at Fort Wayne, Ind., and, wielding a .38-caliber pistol, began robbing the 17 passengers when the bus reached Chicago's South Side. The robber then demanded to be let off the bus.

The driver, Walter Triboloet, 63, of Lima, Ohio, said the robber ordered him to remove his luggage from the baggage compartment.

Tribolet complied and the robber fled on foot, but not before firing two shots at the bus. No one was hurt during the incident, and police said the robber apparently did not voice any shooting threats.

Firemen Want Right To Carry Firearms

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Fire Department officials plan to ask the city to give firemen authority to carry firearms and make arrests as part of a proposed plan to combat the growing arson problem in St. Louis.

Fire Chief Denis Broderick outlined the plan Monday at a meeting with Public Safety Director William Trantina; Rubert McNicholoas, an assistant city counselor, and Robert Duffe, executive assistant to Mayor A. J. Cervantes.

Cervantes has asked Trantina to study the problem and submit possible solutions.

Broderick said at the meeting that 23 other cities have independent arson squads within their fire departments and 20 of them give police powers to the squads. The fire chiefs suggested a 15-member squad for St. Louis but Trantina said he thought the squad should have 40 men with some of them possibily coming from the police department.

Trantina said the fire department squad should work closely with the police bomb and arson squad.

Alderman Milton Svetanic of the first ward has said he will submit legislation to create an arson squad to be manned by both police and fire department members.

McNicholas said state action will be necessary to give firemen police powers.

CONSUMER BATTLE

A quiet, desperate battle is raging behind the doors of the House Government Operations committee this week over a bill that would establish the strongest consumer agency in the nation's history.

The new agency would test products, report on the results, represent the consumer with other government agencies and draft pro-consumer legislation. But the White House and a coalition of special interests are trying to sabotage the bill.

The focus of the anti-consumer efforts is on crotchety old Chet Holifield, D-Calif., chairman of the committee, who in the past has fought many good battles for the consumer, but who has strangely weakened in his old age.

This summer, President Nixon flew Holifield back home to California on the Luxurious presidential Air Force One. As they crossed the nation, Nixon twisted Holifield's arm.

Thereafter, Holifield secretly ordered his staff to water down the bill even though it had over 170 sponsors in the House. Then Holifield obligingly sent the toothless new measure to the White House.

Word of Holifield's fast shuffle leaked out to consumer advocates. He tried to calm them by saying the new bill was merely a draft.

But behind the closed doors of his committee then squashed a protest by Rep. Ben Rosenthal, D-N.Y., that the committee deliberations should be open to the public because of the importance of the bill.

Even Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., and Majority Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., appealed to Holifield privately, but Holifield tried to put them off by saying he didn't have the votes for a stronger bill.

As time began to run out, Ralph Nader, who has strongly backed the bill, met secretly with Holifield and tried to convince him that the original bill could certainly pass.

But despite his past record, Holifield joined Republicans last Friday to vote a first chink in the strong bill.

Just as surprisingly, Ed Garmatz, D-Md., who sponsored the tough bill and who faces a strong pro-consumer challenge in the primary next spring, turned over his proxy to Holifield.

Flo Dwyer, R-N.J., one of the GOP's most powerful consumer advocates, skipped out on the meeting to attend a shopping center dedication after taking issue with Holifield in a private letter to him. Mrs. Dwyer is senior Republican on the committee.

The infighting in the committee is continuing this week, with the showdown likely to erupt on the House floor if the bill is badly weakened by Holifield's committee.

Henry Bussey Elected President Of Associated Cemeteries Of Missouri

Henry Bussey, Vice president and manager of Memorial Park cemetery in Sikeston, was elected president of the Associated cemeteries of Missouri at the annual business meeting of the association held in Jefferson City September 17, 18 and 19th.

Bussey is recognized as a leading cemeterian in the state. He is also president of Forest Hills Memorial Gardens near Morley and a member of the National Cemetery Association, Washington, D.C. As well as a director of the Central States Cemetery Association which is composed of cemeteries in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Arkansas.

The main purpose of these associations is to help all cemetery members to continually improve cemetery conditions throughout the country which in turn gives the public a place to bury that is not a blight and a burden to their community.

Bussey, at the present time, has two new cemetery sections under development at Memorial Park, Sikeston and Forest Hills, near Morley and families can purchase their cemetery needs on a monthly payment plan.

Number Of Vasectomies Shows Spectacular Rise

CHICAGO (AP) — Make love, not babies.

This seems to be the attitude of the modern American male.

The number of men undergoing vasectomy—the male sterilization operation—has shown a "sensational increase" recently, says John R. Rague, executive director of the Association for Voluntary Sterilization in New York City. He estimated 750,000 American males had vasectomies in 1970. That's up from an estimated 200,000 the year before.

And Rague predicted in an interview that the 1971 figure will be even greater than 1970's.

So far, an estimated three million men in the United States have had sterilization surgery—a simple procedure, done often in the doctor's office in a few minutes. The American male is not alone.

In India, where reduction in the birth rate is a major concern, an estimated 8.2 million men have been sterilized. In Great Britain some 20,000 men underwent vasectomies last year and it is estimated the figure will be double for 1971.

Rague said his association offered $30,000 in October 1969 to any New York hospital which would open a vasectomy clinic. There were no takers. The money went to the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau, which did open such a clinic.

Since then, Rague said, 154 vasectomy clinics have opened in 36 states. Among them are 82 hospitals which do vasectomies in their outpatient departments.

Rague, as well as medical authorities, attributes the recent upsurge in requests for male vasectomies to fears about possible adverse side-effects from the contraceptive pills taken by women.

There is also, he said, "a finer understanding of human sexuality, especially among the young," so that males are willing to take responsibility for preventing pregnancy.

And "the Puritanism which has been a strong influence in the development of the United States" has been declining in the past decade, especially among those under age 30, Rague said.

An obstacle to male sterilization has been the popular misconception that the operation makes the man less masculine, less able to perform sexually.

This is untrue.

In fact a survey by the Association for Voluntary Sterilization of 25,000 men who had had vasectomies found that 85 per cent of the men felt that their sexual performances was better, 13 per cent felt it was about the same, and 2 per cent felt that it had declined.

In the last group, Rague noted, the aging process could have been a factor.

The male sterilization operation is much simpler and less expensive to perform than that for females, which requires hospitalization.

Bus Bandit Robs Riders Of $650.00

CHICAGO (AP) — It was highway robbery.

A modern-day Jesse James fled with $650 in cash and jewelry—after ordering the driver of the Greyhound bus to retrieve his luggage.

J. L. Kerrigan, president of the bus line, said it was the first time passengers had been robbed while en route.

Police gave this account:

The robber boarded the bus at Fort Wayne, Ind., and, wielding a .38-caliber pistol, began robbing the 17 passengers when the bus reached Chicago's South Side. The robber then demanded to be let off the bus.

Pentagon Papers Head To Printers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The official declassified Pentagon Papers on the Vietnam war were delivered to Congress today and immediately sent off to the printers to be prepared for distribution to the public as well as Congress members.

An Army sergeant wheeled four cardboard cartons full of the papers—two sets—into the House Armed Services Committee offices at 10 a.m. with no advance announcement.

Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., immediately turned the papers over to public printer A. N. Spence and instructed him to print copies for congressmen and copies to put on public sale.

Hebert said the documents delivered were 43 of the original 47 volumes of the Pentagon's study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.

St Jude Industrial Park Completed

NEW MADRID - Southeast Missouri's largest industrial park of 4,200 acres, under development since 1968, has been completed.

St. Jude Industrial Park, a $6 million facility owned by the city of New Madrid is five miles south of here on the Mississippi river.

Nearly one half of the park acreage, designed to be a complete business community, is utilized or reserved.

Condustruction and development of the park site was financed by a $2,929,000 Economic Development Administration grant to aid industrial expansion. Matching funds totaling $210 million were provided by the city from bond issues.

Tenants include Noranda Aluminum Inc., which operates an aluminum reduction plant under a long term lease with the city. A rod, wire and cable plant constructed by Noranda has been in operation since Oct. of 1969. The Noranda complex occupies or has reserved a total of 1,500 acres.

A city-owned 600,000 megawatt power plant scheduled to be in operation next year will be operated by Associated Electric Cooperative of Springfield.

Power to the park is provided by the co-op through a statewide grid system. Construction of a second 600,000 megawatt power plant in the park is planned by Associated Electric.

Five miles of roads and five miles of rail lines have been built to serve each of the tracts.

Other facilities include a 2.5 million gallon per day water treatment plant, which is expandable to 4.5 million gallons; 500,000-gallon elevated water storage tank; two million gallon fire protection storage; storm drainage system; sanitary sewage collection and treatment system; state approved sanitary landfill; natural gas lines; river docking facilities; and communication system by Southwestern Bell Telephone.

St. Jude Industrial Park board members are Hal E. Hunter Jr., W. R. Phillips Jr., Sam L. Hunter Jr., John Strinich, Bill Swann and Ray Kirmaier.

When the park is occupied by industries, 2,000 are expected to be employed.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Here's Way to Remove Spots on Furniture

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Evalina may be able to remove the white spots caused by placing hot pies on her table by first rubbing the spot with linseed oil (do not wipe it off), then rub with spirits of camphor and then another application of linseed oil. After this the entire table may need a good cleaning as the spots may be a slightly different color. I have restored many old pieces of furniture using this method and have never had a failure.—POLLY D.

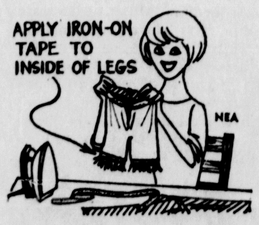

DEAR GIRLS—I am sure many of you remember the old standby treatment for this printed long ago in this column—one I have used so many, many times. Rub white spots with cold cigarette or cigar ashes with a cloth that has been well-moistened with shortening or oil. Rub with the grain of the wood and wipe off immediately. Rewax.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have some woolen blankets, as well as some place mats made from a heavy material, that all need laundering. Since they were made in Mexico, where they may not have been treated as they are in this country, I am afraid of shrinkage. Will someone come to my rescue with a suggestion?—MRS. L. J. L.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with the faint pale printing on the tapes for supermarket cash registers. They make me want to explode as I cannot check my groceries.—JUNE

DEAR POLLY — With cut-off jeans and shorts so popular I found a way to reinforce the legs so they will not tear. I apply iron-on tape all the way around the legs just above the frayed part. Works great! —MRS. D. H.

DEAR GIRLS — Even though Mrs. D. H. did not say so, I feel sure she applies this tape on the inside.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—One day as I came home from a wedding I noticed that the grass needed cutting so, in my haste to get it done, I forgot to take off my new white shoes. When I discovered this I removed them and left them on the steps. The next day when I went outside they were white as new after sitting in the sun. —SHERRI

Old Age Payments Dip But ADC Costs Go Up

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The cost of Old Age Assistance dropped slightly in August but the cost of Aid to Dependent Children went up more than $160,000, the state Division of Welfare reported Mondav.

The third major welfare program, Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled, showed a slight increase.

Proctor N. Carter, welfare director, announced Sept. 2 that payments to the disabled would be reduced by about 5 per cent in October to keep the cost within the appropriation. No similar reduction in benefits is contemplated for the aged or the dependent children programs.

General relief payments will go down 10 per cent.

Here is a breakdown of the three major programs in August, compared with July:

Aid to Dependent Children— August cost of $6,363,356, up $162,413 from July. There were 191,207 mothers, children and unemployed fathers on the rolls, up 4,721. The average payment for each person was $33.28, up 3 cents and the average per family was $110.13, down 32 cents.

Old Age Assistance—August cost of $7,172,110, down $3,467. There were 98,126 persons on the rolls, an increase of 24 but the average grant was $75.69, down 4 cents.

Aid to the permanently and totally disabled—August cost of $1,645,655, up $11,319. There were 21,681 persons on the rolls, an increase of 154 and the average payment was unchanged at $77.12.

Attica Clash Among Worst In Penal Annals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In violence and bloodshed, Monday's clash at New York's Attica State Prison was far the worst in recent American penal history.

The death toll of 41-10 hostages and 31 inmates—topped the breakout attempt at San Quentin in California Aug. 21 when three guards and three prisoners died.

Five inmates were killed during a riot of 400 prisoners at a prison in Raleigh, N.C., April 17, 1968, the high figure for inmates in modern compilations.

Three convicts were killed at Hawaii State Prison Dec. 29, 1965. On May 24 that year, three convicts were killed during a disturbance at a prison in Parchman, Miss.

Four convicts were killed in a riot at the prison in Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 22, 1954, and another on Oct. 23.

One prisoner was killed and 46 injured in rioting at Pendleton, Ind., Sept. 26, 1969; an official was killed at Montana State Prison on March 16, 1959; a convict killed at Trenton, N.J., State Prison Oct. 10, 1958; a convict shot at Florida State Prison on May 17, 1956, and a convict killed at Washington State Prison Aug. 20, 1953.

Several prison riots occurred during these years, but few deaths resulted. Probably the most serious was at Raiford State Prison in Florida on Feb. 16, 1971 when guards opened fire on 600 rioting inmates. Twenty-six were injured.

In 1930, three inmates irritated at work assignments set a fire in a new construction area of the Ohio Penitentiary. The blaze spread, killing 320 inmates and injuring more than 100.

INSIDE THE THIRD REICH, Albert Speer's memories of the events of one of contemporary history's most infamous periods, will finally be available as an Avon Book September 20. Complete with every photograph of the $12.50 hardcover bestseller, Inside The Third Reich is a personal look backward by Hitler's Minister of Armaments and War Production who knew intimately the people who formed the Rich's power elite - Hitler, Hess, Goebbels, Himmler, Goering - and who shared with them the accountability of the German war machine.

Profiling these men and many others with acute insight, Speer spares no one, certainly not himself. Inside The Third Reich is a historical account of the personalities that nurtured the Rich's insatiable greed for world domination.

Inside The Third Reich was a selection of both the Book-of-the- Month Club and the Literary Guild, the subject of three television specials and the basis for leading articles in Life, The New York Times Magazine, Playboy and other periodicals. Drug Abuse War Rises In Intensity

WASHINGTON - America's war on drug abuse is becoming an all-out attack, featuring preventive measures and highlighted by nationwide activity during Drug Abuse Prevention Week, proclaimed this year for Oct. 3-9 by President Nixon.

Although the intensified action calls for a wide range of activities to fight drug abuse, this year's Drug Abuse Prevention Week relates particularly to parent-adolescent dialogues on the problem of drug abuse.

Termed "GAP Fests" (Groups of Adolescents and Parents,talking together) these meetings are being encouraged by the White House Special Action Office on Drug Abuse Prevention not only during the special week, but also on a longer-term basis.

Adolescents have been brought in on planning sessions for "GAP Fests" and other Drug Abuse Prevention Week activties, and, if these prove sucessful, expectation is that "GAP Fests" and other programs popular with joint youth-adult groups will be developed into regular yea-round activities.

Newspapers and other media of communication are the spearhead of Drug Abuse Prevention Week, informational aspects, however, and, based on last year's experience, when the firs special prevention week was announced by the President, all out assistance is predicted for the media.

Major feature articles, drug abuse series, and a wealth of news and action stories are a significant part of the massive informational and educational attack that print media, especially the Nation's daily and weekly newspapers, are mounting for October. Many carry-over or extended activities, however, will continue through the year.

Pentagon Papers Head To Printers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The official declassified Pentagon Papers on the Vietnam war were delivered to Congress today and immediately sent off to the printers to be prepared for distribution to the public as well as Congress members.

An Army sergeant wheeled four cardboard cartons full of the papers—two sets—into the House Armed Services Committee offices at 10 a.m. with no advance announcement.

Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., immediately turned the papers over to public printer A. N. Spence and instructed him to print copies for congressmen and copies to put on public sale.

Hebert said the documents delivered were 43 of the original 47 volumes of the Pentagon's study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.

St Jude Industrial Park Completed

NEW MADRID - Southeast Missouri's largest industrial park of 4,200 acres, under development since 1968, has been completed.

St. Jude Industrial Park, a $6 million facility owned by the city of New Madrid is five miles south of here on the Mississippi river.

Nearly one half of the park acreage, designed to be a complete business community, is utilized or reserved.

Condustruction and development of the park site was financed by a $2,929,000 Economic Development Administration grant to aid industrial expansion. Matching funds totaling $210 million were provided by the city from bond issues.

Tenants include Noranda Aluminum Inc., which operates an aluminum reduction plant under a long term lease with the city. A rod, wire and cable plant constructed by Noranda has been in operation since Oct. of 1969. The Noranda complex occupies or has reserved a total of 1,500 acres.

A city-owned 600,000 megawatt power plant scheduled to be in operation next year will be operated by Associated Electric Cooperative of Springfield.

Power to the park is provided by the co-op through a statewide grid system. Construction of a second 600,000 megawatt power plant in the park is planned by Associated Electric.

Five miles of roads and five miles of rail lines have been built to serve each of the tracts.

Other facilities include a 2.5 million gallon per day water treatment plant, which is expandable to 4.5 million gallons; 500,000-gallon elevated water storage tank; two million gallon fire protection storage; storm drainage system; sanitary sewage collection and treatment system; state approved sanitary landfill; natural gas lines; river docking facilities; and communication system by Southwestern Bell Telephone.

St. Jude Industrial Park board members are Hal E. Hunter Jr., W. R. Phillips Jr., Sam L. Hunter Jr., John Strinich, Bill Swann and Ray Kirmaier.

When the park is occupied by industries, 2,000 are expected to be employed.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Here's Way to Remove Spots on Furniture

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Evalina may be able to remove the white spots caused by placing hot pies on her table by first rubbing the spot with linseed oil (do not wipe it off), then rub with spirits of camphor and then another application of linseed oil. After this the entire table may need a good cleaning as the spots may be a slightly different color. I have restored many old pieces of furniture using this method and have never had a failure.—POLLY D.

DEAR GIRLS—I am sure many of you remember the old standby treatment for this printed long ago in this column—one I have used so many, many times. Rub white spots with cold cigarette or cigar ashes with a cloth that has been well-moistened with shortening or oil. Rub with the grain of the wood and wipe off immediately. Rewax.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have some woolen blankets, as well as some place mats made from a heavy material, that all need laundering. Since they were made in Mexico, where they may not have been treated as they are in this country, I am afraid of shrinkage. Will someone come to my rescue with a suggestion?—MRS. L. J. L.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with the faint pale printing on the tapes for supermarket cash registers. They make me want to explode as I cannot check my groceries.—JUNE

DEAR POLLY — With cut-off jeans and shorts so popular I found a way to reinforce the legs so they will not tear. I apply iron-on tape all the way around the legs just above the frayed part. Works great! —MRS. D. H.

DEAR GIRLS — Even though Mrs. D. H. did not say so, I feel sure she applies this tape on the inside.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—One day as I came home from a wedding I noticed that the grass needed cutting so, in my haste to get it done, I forgot to take off my new white shoes. When I discovered this I removed them and left them on the steps. The next day when I went outside they were white as new after sitting in the sun. —SHERRI

Old Age Payments Dip But ADC Costs Go Up

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The cost of Old Age Assistance dropped slightly in August but the cost of Aid to Dependent Children went up more than $160,000, the state Division of Welfare reported Monday.

The third major welfare program, Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled, showed a slight increase.

Proctor N. Carter, welfare director, announced Sept. 2 that payments to the disabled would be reduced by about 5 per cent in October to keep the cost within the appropriation. No similar reduction in benefits is contemplated for the aged or the dependent children programs.

General relief payments will go down 10 per cent.

Here is a breakdown of the three major programs in August, compared with July:

Aid to Dependent Children— August cost of $6,363,356, up $162,413 from July. There were 191,207 mothers, children and unemployed fathers on the rolls, up 4,721. The average payment for each person was $33.28, up 3 cents and the average per family was $110.13, down 32 cents.

Old Age Assistance—August cost of $7,172,110, down $3,467. There were 98,126 persons on the rolls, an increase of 24 but the average grant was $75.69, down 4 cents.

Aid to the permanently and totally disabled—August cost of $1,645,655, up $11,319. There were 21,681 persons on the rolls, an increase of 154 and the average payment was unchanged at $77.12.

Attica Clash Among Worst In Penal Annals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In violence and bloodshed, Monday's clash at New York's Attica State Prison was far the worst in recent American penal history.

The death toll of 41-10 hostages and 31 inmates—topped the breakout attempt at San Quentin in California Aug. 21 when three guards and three prisoners died.

Five inmates were killed during a riot of 400 prisoners at a prison in Raleigh, N.C., April 17, 1968, the high figure for inmates in modern compilations.

Three convicts were killed at Hawaii State Prison Dec. 29, 1965. On May 24 that year, three convicts were killed during a disturbance at a prison in Parchman, Miss.

Four convicts were killed in a riot at the prison in Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 22, 1954, and another on Oct. 23.

One prisoner was killed and 46 injured in rioting at Pendleton, Ind., Sept. 26, 1969; an official was killed at Montana State Prison on March 16, 1959; a convict killed at Trenton, N.J., State Prison Oct. 10, 1958; a convict shot at Florida State Prison on May 17, 1956, and a convict killed at Washington State Prison Aug. 20, 1953.

Several prison riots occurred during these years, but few deaths resulted. Probably the most serious was at Raiford State Prison in Florida on Feb. 16, 1971 when guards opened fire on 600 rioting inmates. Twenty-six were injured.

In 1930, three inmates irritated at work assignments set a fire in a new construction area of the Ohio Penitentiary. The blaze spread, killing 320 inmates and injuring more than 100.

Drug Abuse War Rises In Intensity

WASHINGTON - America's war on drug abuse is becoming an all-out attack, featuring preventive measures and highlighted by nationwide activity during Drug Abuse Prevention Week, proclaimed this year for Oct. 3-9 by President Nixon.

Although the intensified action calls for a wide range of activities to fight drug abuse, this year's Drug Abuse Prevention Week relates particularly to parent-adolescent dialogues on the problem of drug abuse.

Termed "GAP Fests" (Groups of Adolescents and Parents,talking together) these meetings are being encouraged by the White House Special Action Office on Drug Abuse Prevention not only during the special week, but also on a longer-term basis.

Adolescents have been brought in on planning sessions for "GAP Fests" and other Drug Abuse Prevention Week activities, and, if these prove sucessful, expectation is that "GAP Fests" and other programs popular with joint youth-adult groups will be developed into regular year-round activities.

Newspapers and other media of communication are the spearhead of Drug Abuse Prevention Week, informational aspects, however, and, based on last year's experience, when the first special prevention week was announced by the President, all out assistance is predicted for the media.

Major feature articles, drug abuse series, and a wealth of news and action stories are a significant part of the massive informational and educational attack that print media, especially the Nation's daily and weekly newspapers, are mounting for October. Many carry over or extended activities, however, will continue through the year.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Four Year Old Swallows Pin

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—A few months ago, while playing with her doll, my 4-year-old daughter swallowed a straight pin. The pin went down her windpipe and lodged in her right lung. It stopped in the bottom lobe of her right lung. She was rushed to a lung specialist. He went down her windpipe many times trying to remove the pin. But he could not reach it. She had no complications except just the pin in her lung for five months. The doctors kept planning lung surgery.

After she had kept the pin five months she was outside with me, playing and all at once she began coughing. I was standing right beside her. She put her fingers in her mouth and took the straight pin out. It came all the way out to her tongue. Just two weeks before this she had Xrays. So the pin must have come all the way from the bottom lobe of her lung, out to her mouth. Lung specialists said they had never heard of this before. Tell me how the pin could have gotten out without complications.

Dear Reader—Your little girl was very lucky. The windpipe and the air passages are really constructed a bit like a huge tree with a hollow trunk (windpipe) and hollow branches. The air passages like the limbs get smaller as they branch out. I would think the pin was far enough down the passages to be beyond reach with the types of instruments used to go down the windpipe and remove an object like this.

As long as the pin was not stuck in the lung it was like lying in the bottom of a bottle. It may well have moved while she was lying down and didn't become fixed in one position. The air passages are lined with a type of fine hair and form mucus that serves to clean the air and the air passages. They naturally tend to act to move things up and out. Straight pins however are a bit beyond the call of duty. The mucus normally secreted by the air passages probably helped carry the pin up the windpipe to the point that she could cough it up in her sputum.

One of the problems with small children is that you never know just what they may have swallowed or have gotten in the lungs. And if you don't see it happen you never know it until trouble occurs if it does. You speak as if your girl, for instance, had no trouble for five months even though a straight pin was in the lung.

Group Seeking Sunday Liquor Voter Test Admits Trouble

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An organization trying to force a voter test of a new law permitting restaurants to sell alcoholic drinks on Sunday reports that it has had some trouble but is still trying to meet the Sept. 28 deadline.

The organization, "Missourians for Safety on Highways," is headed by Dr. Monte Peterson, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Belton, Mo.

He said, "We're getting a lot of names, but they're not evenly spread. Right now it looks like we need a lot more work in all districts except perhaps those in southeastern and southwestern Missouri, though we want more from these districts also.

"Two districts are in pretty good shape, we think. Three are about three-fourths complete. Another is about half way. I'm being conservative in these estimates for we've been told that we have to get a buffer in each district to be sure of carrying it."

To successfully force a referendum vote on the law that otherwise becomes effective Sept. 28 the organization must produce signatures equalling 5 per cent of the vote in the last general election for governor in at least seven of the 10 congressional districts.

"Frankly," Peterson said, "we're hurting in St. Louis and Kansas City. Not much has been done in these places. Perhaps this is symptomatic of urban situations where political machines are in the saddle, or so it seems.

"We've got to work hard in the next eight days. Either we turn in a valid petition on Sept. 27 or 28, or we fail ... "we won't trouble the secretary of state with a petition that we don't think meets legal requirements."

U.S. Efforts To Impose New Monetary Order Move Slowly

NEW YORK (AP) — The ability of the United States to unilaterally impose on the world a new monetary order appears now to be less than was first believed and hoped for in Washington.

The U.S. plan was to force a realignment of currencies by floating the dollar, or releasing it from its anchor of gold. Other currencies, it was hoped, would then rise in relation to the dollar.

The effect would be to make American products more competitive abroad and foreign products less competitive, or more costly, in the United States, which for many nations is their biggest export market.

To enforce its demands, the United States holds another weapon, a 10 per cent surcharge on foreign goods. Regardless of the effectiveness of the dollar floating, therefore, foreign goods will be made less competitive.

The realignment of currencies has taken place to some extent, but slowly. Some analysts now believe that only half the level of adjustment has been achieved in more than a month and that the second half will be harder to achieve for several reasons.

Gaining adherents now, especially since a meeting Sept. 15 in London of the major trading nations, is a plan whereby the United States would meet other nations halfway, that is, through a devaluation of the dollar.

Few monetary officials deny that the United States had cause to seek a realignment of currencies, but they are reportedly indignant about the manner in which it was attempted. The United States too must contribute, they say.

If the United States were to officially devalue the dollar, instead of relying solely on revaluation of foreign currencies, it might reduce the burden somewhat. Its main value, however, would be in speeding the entire process.

Some bankers and others fear that the longer the adjustment process is carried out the greater is the danger that world trade, essential for the economic health of all nations, will deteriorate.

Devaluation by the United States would involve raising the official price of gold from $35 an ounce to perhaps $37 or so.

There are several objections to devaluation. The psychological reason cannot be dismissed. The United States feels that, despite its financial problems, it is still the most powerful economy and should be in a position to demand reforms.

Perhaps the most-often mentioned objection to devaluation is the feeling that to raise the price of gold would be to hand a gift to South Africa and Russia, both big producers with whom there are ideological disputes.

Other observers scoff at the argument, maintaining that it pales in comparison to the growing threat to world trade that could result from indecision over the relative value of currencies.

Manhattan College Offers Full-Fledged Peace Major

NEW YORK (AP) — Teach peace, not war. That's the theory behind a new and unusual major being offered undergraduates at Manhattan College.

The program, believed to be the first in the country at an undergraduate level, includes eight courses from various academic disciplines and a seminar.

A spokesman for the Roman Catholic college said the idea of a peace major stemmed from the Pacem in Terris Institute, an extracurricular program founded in 1963 by a group of Manhattan teachers. The institute took its name from the encyclical issued by the late Pope John XXIII and meaning Peace on Earth.

"Their founding principle," said the school spokesman, "was that peace could be taught. They referred to other things that are taught--including war and military tactics. Peace is a valid academis discipline."

Interest in the institute and its convocations and lectures led to the establishment five years ago of a peace course and, this fall, a full-fledged peace major.

Dr. Tom Stonier, director of the program, said eight juniors have begun peace majors, Enrollment in individual peace courses offered as electives ranges from 20 to 150, he said.

Why a peace major? "The outstanding social problem of our time is intergroup conflicts," said Stonier. "We see it in many parts of the globe. We feel that the students who must be tomorrow's leaders are not getting an adequate education on this point, that someone must address themselves systematically to the problem."

The peace major is interdisciplinary, meaning courses come from different departments-- history, biology, literature, religious studies, psychology, economy and government. Students majoring in peace must take all eight courses--29 credits--plus the seminar over a two-year period.

Specific courses include: world economic geography--relating the geography of a country to its policies of aggression or nonaggression; anatomy of peace--a review of "war Limiting or peace maintaining systems," peace and revolution--peaceful means of revolutionary change within the framework of Christiain theology; the literature of peace and war; and the biology of human behavior.

Stonier said the developers of the program hope the peace graduates will enter a variety of fields, particularly teaching and businesses that involve intergroup conflicts. He suggested peace graduates also could be valuable in helping prison wardens and law enforcement officials.

MU Curators To Seek Nearly $212 Million

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The University of Missouri Board of Curators agreed Friday to request $113.8 million for operations and $98 million for capital improvements for the 197273 fiscal year.

The board approved the requests on recommendation of Dr. C. Brice Ratchdord, president of the four-campus university. There was one dissenting vote on the capital improvements request, none on the one for operating funds.

Dr. Ratchford said the amount of operating funds requested from the state is nearly $24 million more than the $89.9 million appropriated for the current fiscal year, but only slightly more than $5 million over the $108.7 million the university requested for the current year.

The request for capital improvements appropirations was large, Dr. Rachford said, because only $2.5 million in such funds was provided this year.

"The building needs of the university are becoming so critical that our ability to carry on established programs in an adequate manner is seriously threatened," he said.

Building repairs and site acquisition were listed as the first and second priorities in capital improvements by the board.

The curators also announced approval of final plans for a new School of Medicine building at the Kansas City campus, and of preliminary plans for a six-story addition to McHaney Hall at the university medical center, Columbia.

A breakdown of the operating budget request shows $50.7 million requested for the Columbia campus, including the medical school, $10 million for University Hospital: $17 million, Kansas City campus: $12.5 million Rolla campus: $11.9 million, St. Louis campus.

Acts Of Mercy Spared Lives Of 3 Hostages

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Acts of mercy spared at least three hostages during the violence Monday at Attica Prison.

"The man behind me was an inmate I had known for some time," said guard Richard Fargo, who was a hostage for 98 hours.

He was recalling the moment Monday morning when leaders of the rebelling prisoners ordered the slaying of hostages before state troopers, prison guards and sheriff's deputies closed in.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Four Year Old Swallows Pin

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—A few months ago, while playing with her doll, my 4-year-old daughter swallowed a straight pin. The pin went down her windpipe and lodged in her right lung. It stopped in the bottom lobe of her right lung. She was rushed to a lung specialist. He went down her windpipe many times trying to remove the pin. But he could not reach it. She had no complications except just the pin in her lung for five months. The doctors kept planning lung surgery.

After she had kept the pin five months she was outside with me, playing and all at once she began coughing. I was standing right beside her. She put her fingers in her mouth and took the straight pin out. It came all the way out to her tongue. Just two weeks before this she had Xrays. So the pin must have come all the way from the bottom lobe of her lung, out to her mouth. Lung specialists said they had never heard of this before. Tell me how the pin could have gotten out without complications.

Dear Reader—Your little girl was very lucky. The windpipe and the air passages are really constructed a bit like a huge tree with a hollow trunk (windpipe) and hollow branches. The air passages like the limbs get smaller as they branch out. I would think the pin was far enough down the passages to be beyond reach with the types of instruments used to go down the windpipe and remove an object like this.

As long as the pin was not stuck in the lung it was like lying in the bottom of a bottle. It may well have moved while she was lying down and didn't become fixed in one position. The air passages are lined with a type of fine hair and form mucus that serves to clean the air and the air passages. They naturally tend to act to move things up and out. Straight pins however are a bit beyond the call of duty. The mucus normally secreted by the air passages probably helped carry the pin up the windpipe to the point that she could cough it up in her sputum.

One of the problems with small children is that you never know just what they may have swallowed or have gotten in the lungs. And if you don't see it happen you never know it until trouble occurs if it does. You speak as if your girl, for instance, had no trouble for five months even though a straight pin was in the lung.

Group Seeking Sunday Liquor Voter Test Admits Trouble

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An organization trying to force a voter test of a new law permitting restaurants to sell alcoholic drinks on Sunday reports that it has had some trouble but is still trying to meet the Sept. 28 deadline.

The organization, "Missourians for Safety on Highways," is headed by Dr. Monte Peterson, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Belton, Mo.

He said, "We're getting a lot of names, but they're not evenly spread. Right now it looks like we need a lot more work in all districts except perhaps those in southeastern and southwestern Missouri, though we want more from these districts also.

"Two districts are in pretty good shape, we think. Three are about three-fourths complete. Another is about half way. I'm being conservative in these estimates for we've been told that we have to get a buffer in each district to be sure of carrying it."

To successfully force a referendum vote on the law that otherwise becomes effective Sept. 28 the organization must produce signatures equalling 5 per cent of the vote in the last general election for governor in at least seven of the 10 congressional districts.

"Frankly," Peterson said, "we're hurting in St. Louis and Kansas City. Not much has been done in these places. Perhaps this is symptomatic of urban situations where political machines are in the saddle, or so it seems.

"We've got to work hard in the next eight days. Either we turn in a valid petition on Sept. 27 or 28, or we fail ... "we won't trouble the secretary of state with a petition that we don't think meets legal requirements."

U.S. Efforts To Impose New Monetary Order Move Slowly

NEW YORK (AP) — The ability of the United States to unilaterally impose on the world a new monetary order appears now to be less than was first believed and hoped for in Washington.

The U.S. plan was to force a realignment of currencies by floating the dollar, or releasing it from its anchor of gold. Other currencies, it was hoped, would then rise in relation to the dollar.

The effect would be to make American products more competitive abroad and foreign products less competitive, or more costly, in the United States, which for many nations is their biggest export market.

To enforce its demands, the United States holds another weapon, a 10 per cent surcharge on foreign goods. Regardless of the effectiveness of the dollar floating, therefore, foreign goods will be made less competitive.

The realignment of currencies has taken place to some extent, but slowly. Some analysts now believe that only half the level of adjustment has been achieved in more than a month and that the second half will be harder to achieve for several reasons.

Gaining adherents now, especially since a meeting Sept. 15 in London of the major trading nations, is a plan whereby the United States would meet other nations halfway, that is, through a devaluation of the dollar.

Few monetary officials deny that the United States had cause to seek a realignment of currencies, but they are reportedly indignant about the manner in which it was attempted. The United States too must contribute, they say.

If the United States were to officially devalue the dollar, instead of relying solely on revaluation of foreign currencies, it might reduce the burden somewhat. Its main value, however, would be in speeding the entire process.

Some bankers and others fear that the longer the adjustment process is carried out the greater is the danger that world trade, essential for the economic health of all nations, will deteriorate.

Devaluation by the United States would involve raising the official price of gold from $35 an ounce to perhaps $37 or so.

There are several objections to devaluation. The psychological reason cannot be dismissed. The United States feels that, despite its financial problems, it is still the most powerful economy and should be in a position to demand reforms.

Perhaps the most-often mentioned objection to devaluation is the feeling that to raise the price of gold would be to hand a gift to South Africa and Russia, both big producers with whom there are ideological disputes.

Other observers scoff at the argument, maintaining that it pales in comparison to the growing threat to world trade that could result from indecision over the relative value of currencies.

Manhattan College Offers Full-Fledged Peace Major

NEW YORK (AP) — Teach peace, not war. That's the theory behind a new and unusual major being offered undergraduates at Manhattan College.

The program, believed to be the first in the country at an undergraduate level, includes eight courses from various academic disciplines and a seminar.

A spokesman for the Roman Catholic college said the idea of a peace major stemmed from the Pacem in Terris Institute, an extracurricular program founded in 1963 by a group of Manhattan teachers. The institute took its name from the encyclical issued by the late Pope John XXIII and meaning Peace on Earth.

"Their founding principle," said the school spokesman, "was that peace could be taught. They referred to other things that are taught--including war and military tactics. Peace is a valid academis discipline."

Interest in the institute and its convocations and lectures led to the establishment five years ago of a peace course and, this fall, a full-fledged peace major.

Dr. Tom Stonier, director of the program, said eight juniors have begun peace majors, Enrollment in individual peace courses offered as electives ranges from 20 to 150, he said.

Why a peace major? "The outstanding social problem of our time is intergroup conflicts," said Stonier. "We see it in many parts of the globe. We feel that the students who must be tomorrow's leaders are not getting an adequate education on this point, that someone must address themselves systematically to the problem."

The peace major is interdisciplinary, meaning courses come from different departments-- history, biology, literature, religious studies, psychology, economy and government. Students majoring in peace must take all eight courses--29 credits--plus the seminar over a two-year period.

Specific courses include: world economic geography--relating the geography of a country to its policies of aggression or nonaggression; anatomy of peace--a review of "war Limiting or peace maintaining systems," peace and revolution--peaceful means of revolutionary change within the framework of Christiain theology; the literature of peace and war; and the biology of human behavior.

Stonier said the developers of the program hope the peace graduates will enter a variety of fields, particularly teaching and businesses that involve intergroup conflicts. He suggested peace graduates also could be valuable in helping prison wardens and law enforcement officials.

MU Curators To Seek Nearly $212 Million

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The University of Missouri Board of Curators agreed Friday to request $113.8 million for operations and $98 million for capital improvements for the 197273 fiscal year.

The board approved the requests on recommendation of Dr. C. Brice Ratchdord, president of the four-campus university. There was one dissenting vote on the capital improvements request, none on the one for operating funds.

Dr. Ratchford said the amount of operating funds requested from the state is nearly $24 million more than the $89.9 million appropriated for the current fiscal year, but only slightly more than $5 million over the $108.7 million the university requested for the current year.

The request for capital improvements appropirations was large, Dr. Rachford said, because only $2.5 million in such funds was provided this year.

"The building needs of the university are becoming so critical that our ability to carry on established programs in an adequate manner is seriously threatened," he said.

Building repairs and site acquisition were listed as the first and second priorities in capital improvements by the board.

The curators also announced approval of final plans for a new School of Medicine building at the Kansas City campus, and of preliminary plans for a six-story addition to McHaney Hall at the university medical center, Columbia.

A breakdown of the operating budget request shows $50.7 million requested for the Columbia campus, including the medical school, $10 million for University Hospital: $17 million, Kansas City campus: $12.5 million Rolla campus: $11.9 million, St. Louis campus.

Acts Of Mercy Spared Lives Of 3 Hostages

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Acts of mercy spared at least three hostages during the violence Monday at Attica Prison.

"The man behind me was an inmate I had known for some time," said guard Richard Fargo, who was a hostage for 98 hours.

He was recalling the moment Monday morning when leaders of the rebelling prisoners ordered the slaying of hostages before state troopers, prison guards and sheriff's deputies closed in.

"He whispered in my ear that I would not be hurt. He was supposed to stick a knife between my ribs. He stuck the knife just to prick the skin and said, 'Now don't tell them I didn't kill you.' Then he threw me backwards and covered my body with his," said Fargo.

It as the prisoner's last act.

"When it was over," said Fargo, "he was dead."

The executioner assigned to guard Elmer Huehn told him: "I don't have the heart to do it. I'm only going to prick you."

The executioner drew blood and then fell on top of him to hide him from other convicts. "This wonderful Puerto Rican saved my life," said Huehn, but he mourned other hostages who were killed—"The others didn't have help and they're lying dead."

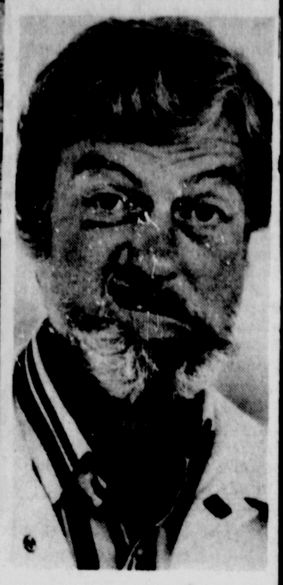

Philip Watkins, another guard who was a hostage had a similar experience. "The guy had time to kill me, but he didn't."

RIDE 'EM COWBOY, Cambodian style. The mount of a lad in Prey Nhay is more ornate than the American version, but the reaction is universal.

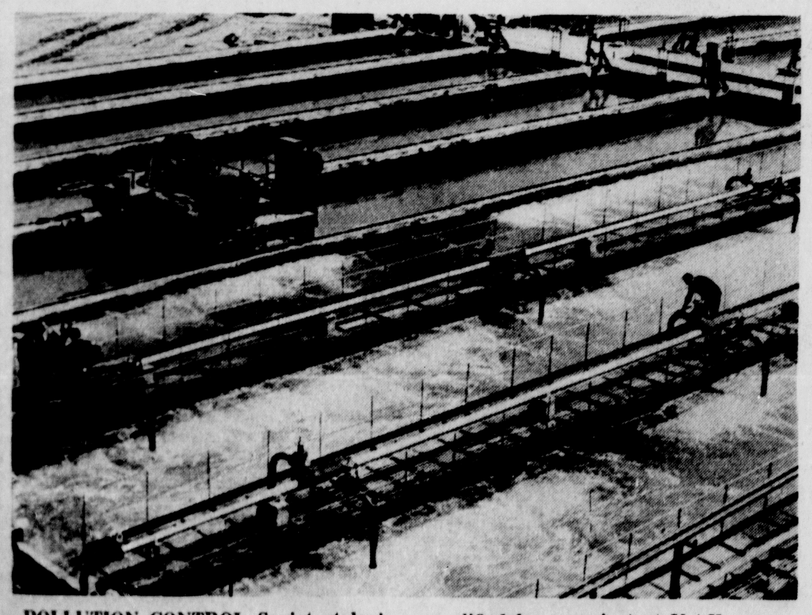

The name oxfords for low shoes laced or tied over the instep came from the fact that such shoes were made and worn at Oxford or in Oxfordshire, England, in the early 17th century, according to The World Almanac. Oxfords are still the most popular type of men's shoes in America.

The assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand in June, 1914, at Sarajevo, Bosnia, had disastrous consequences, The World Almanac notes. A student named Princip shot Ferdinand, to avenge the seizure of Bosnia by Austria-Hungary. Austria declared war against Serbia and within a week opposing alliances engulfed Europe in World War I. More than eight million soldiers and civilians died during the conflict.

The '72 Race

Ted Can Dawdle, Lindsay Can't

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (NEA)

Of the Democrats' two glamor-boy candidates, Sen. Edward Kennedy and New York Mayor John Lindsay, Ted can afford to wait until convention time in 1972 and the mayor can't wait at all to make a run for the presidency.

A canvassing of governors here at the National Governors' Conference and of Democratic state chairmen at their Florida meeting makes it clear Kennedy's name will be alive until someone else is nominated. He comes up again and again, from Connecticut to California and into the Deep South.

That California poll which showed him beating Sen. Edmund Muskie, 37 to 19, in the state was a stunner for a lot of party professionals.

Yet you can't find a Democratic politician of stature who thinks Ted is going to move in the 1972 race in any way. One western governor told me he believes Kennedy would not even like to be drafted at Miami Beach next July.

This doesn't mean that some people in the Kennedy camp are not itchy. Seasoned in other Kennedy races, they feel that the presently active campaigners are rather generally inept, and that they could do it better. But they are locked into a holding pattern.

It's different for Lindsay, the Democratic newcomer. He is known to be playing with the option of plunging into the race early, instead of late as first indicated. Several governors and state chairmen say privately, however, that he doesn't really have an option, that he has to move quickly.

The reasoning is that the mayor can only be sold as a plausible candidate if he is willing to expose himself to the risks and rigors of a full race—which means running in primaries from March on.

To hang back and hope for other candidates to falter before jumping in is seen by one sympathetic professional as "too cute" to make broad impact in the party.

A Plains state governor here expresses it this way:

"People in this country are tired of an image. They want to see the person. That's the way most of these new Democratic governors got elected."

Should Lindsay signal an early entry, his course will be difficult. As previously reported, he is a long way from getting even a toehold in primary states like Wisconsin and Massachusetts, with sizable liberal elements. A fresh run-through of Democratic governors at this conference turns up virtually nothing for Lindsay, in hand or in sight, in such states as Alaska, Georgia, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Idaho, Utah. This limited roster evidently is pretty representative of the whole list.

As noted in a Florida dispatch, Lindsay might work up something fairly useful for him among Dade County liberals in Florida's 81-vote primary next March 14.

Apparently the most combustible prospect he has is the June 6 winner-take-all primary (271 votes) in California. The newest poll gives him 8 per cent, not bad for a new boy. If he could hijack some of that heavy Kennedy sentiment, he might be in business there. But his basic problem is unchanged: How to stay alive until California.

What's the Law

No Insult In This Proposition

Roger went to work each day on a commuter train where his only pleasure, to break up the monotony of the trip, was to wishfully ogle the more attractive female passengers as they sashayed by. Then the most seductive female he had ever seen took the seat next to him. And, to impress her, he surreptiously flipped his newspaper from the comic page to the financial section.

That evening, Roger saw the same gal again on the train only this time, he took the seat next to her. What's more, he also took the initiative. In a very gentlemanly fashion, he told her how beautiful he thought she looked, which went over big with her since she appeared obviously flattered. But then, overcome by the success of his gallant approach, Roger made the mistake of propositioning her. Outraged, she retaliated by suing him for having insulted her.

"I was never so embarrassed, humiliated and ashamed in my whole life," she told the judge. "And, he did it with a smile on his face."

"Of course, I did," was Roger's answer, "because I liked what I saw. My mistake was in thinking that she liked what she saw also. But, she can't sue me for that."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make romantic Roger pay for his indecent proposal?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! He held that the object of Roger's affection could not collect for her hurt feelings since there is no harm in asking provided it is done in a gentlemanly manner(Based upon a 1960 New York Supreme Court Decision)

Enrollment At Three Rivers Exceeds 1,000

POPLAR BLUFF - - Registration of the last class scheduled thus far, was 1,007. The previous high in TRJC history was 874 students in the fall semester of 1970.

The last class scheduled thus far for the fall semester was that for nursing home supervisors and administrators, for which 26 persons enrolled. The total registration also includes 40 students in adult vocational agriculture classes in Poplar Bluff and Piedmont.

The increase this year was one of the largest since the second year of operation of the college. The first classes at the college were in the summer of 1967, and enrollment that fall was understandably small.

Fall semester registration in 1967 was 487; in 1968 it was 780, and in 1969 it was 839.

This year's increase was due in some measure to new career programs, but it also indicates a greater attraction by Three Rivers Junior College to students intending to transfer to four-year colleges, said Jack D. Vincent, vice president and dean of the college.

FDA Says Some Stores Holding Blacklisted Soup

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Food and Drug Administration said Monday some stores are holding on to Bon Vivant soups and sauces numbering thousands of cans in hopes they will eventually be cleared for sale.

"But we are satisfied that none is currently on sale," said an FDA spokesman, John T. Walden. "We have the bulk under our control and are satisfied most of the threat has passed."

The agency ordered all products manufactured by Bon Vivant Soup Co., Newark, N.J., off the market in July after a can of the firm's vichyssoise was blamed for the death from botulism of a New York man.

The '72 Race

Ted Can Dawdle, Lindsay Can't

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (NEA)

Of the Democrats' two glamor-boy candidates, Sen. Edward Kennedy and New York Mayor John Lindsay, Ted can afford to wait until convention time in 1972 and the mayor can't wait at all to make a run for the presidency.

A canvassing of governors here at the National Governors' Conference and of Democratic state chairmen at their Florida meeting makes it clear Kennedy's name will be alive until someone else is nominated. He comes up again and again, from Connecticut to California and into the Deep South.

That California poll which showed him beating Sen. Edmund Muskie, 37 to 19, in the state was a stunner for a lot of party professionals.

Yet you can't find a Democratic politician of stature who thinks Ted is going to move in the 1972 race in any way. One western governor told me he believes Kennedy would not even like to be drafted at Miami Beach next July.

This doesn't mean that some people in the Kennedy camp are not itchy. Seasoned in other Kennedy races, they feel that the presently active campaigners are rather generally inept, and that they could do it better. But they are locked into a holding pattern.

It's different for Lindsay, the Democratic newcomer. He is known to be playing with the option of plunging into the race early, instead of late as first indicated. Several governors and state chairmen say privately, however, that he doesn't really have an option, that he has to move quickly.

The reasoning is that the mayor can only be sold as a plausible candidate if he is willing to expose himself to the risks and rigors of a full race—which means running in primaries from March on.

To hang back and hope for other candidates to falter before jumping in is seen by one sympathetic professional as "too cute" to make broad impact in the party.

A Plains state governor here expresses it this way:

"People in this country are tired of an image. They want to see the person. That's the way most of these new Democratic governors got elected."

Should Lindsay signal an early entry, his course will be difficult. As previously reported, he is a long way from getting even a toehold in primary states like Wisconsin and Massachusetts, with sizable liberal elements. A fresh run-through of Democratic governors at this conference turns up virtually nothing for Lindsay, in hand or in sight, in such states as Alaska, Georgia, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Idaho, Utah. This limited roster evidently is pretty representative of the whole list.

As noted in a Florida dispatch, Lindsay might work up something fairly useful for him among Dade County liberals in Florida's 81-vote primary next March 14.

Apparently the most combustible prospect he has is the June 6 winner-take-all primary (271 votes) in California. The newest poll gives him 8 per cent, not bad for a new boy. If he could hijack some of that heavy Kennedy sentiment, he might be in business there. But his basic problem is unchanged: How to stay alive until California.

What's the Law

No Insult In This Proposition

Roger went to work each day on a commuter train where his only pleasure, to break up the monotony of the trip, was to wishfully ogle the more attractive female passengers as they sashayed by. Then the most seductive female he had ever seen took the seat next to him. And, to impress her, he surreptiously flipped his newspaper from the comic page to the financial section.

That evening, Roger saw the same gal again on the train only this time, he took the seat next to her. What's more, he also took the initiative. In a very gentlemanly fashion, he told her how beautiful he thought she looked, which went over big with her since she appeared obviously flattered. But then overcome by the success of his gallant approach, Roger made the mistake of propositioning her. Outraged, she retaliated by suing him for having insulted her.

"I was never so embarrassed, humiliated and ashamed in my whole life," she told the judge. "And, he did it with a smile on his face."

"Of course, I did," was Roger's answer, "because I liked what I saw. My mistake was in thinking that she liked what she saw also. But, she can't sue me for that."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make romantic Roger pay for his indecent proposal?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! He held that the object of Roger's affection could not collect for her hurt feelings since there is no harm in asking provided it is done in a gentlemanly manner(Based upon a 1960 New York Supreme Court Decision)

State Share Of National Forest Funds $629,431

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Durward Hall, R-Mo., says Missouri will receive $629,431 as its share of receipts from products and services of the national forest.

Hall said the funds, being distributed to 39 states, were received from timber harvest sales, recreation, power and other land use fees collected by the national forests.

FDA Says Some Stores Holding Blacklisted Soup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said Monday some stores are holding on to Bon Vivant soups and sauces numbering thousands of cans in hopes they will eventually be cleared for sale.

"But we are satisfied that none is currently on sale," said an FDA spokesman, John T. Walden. "We have the bulk under our control and are satisfied most of the threat has passed."

The agency ordered all products manufactured by Bon Vivant Soup Co., Newark, N.J., off the market in July after a can of the firm's vichyssoise was blamed for the death from botulism of a New York man.

Enrollment At Three Rivers Exceeds 1,000

POPLAR BLUFF - - Registration of the last class scheduled thus far, was 1,007. The previous high in TRJC history was 874 students in the fall semester of 1970.

The last class scheduled thus far for the fall semester was that for nursing home supervisors and administrators, for which 26 persons enrolled. The total registration also includes 40 students in adult vocational agriculture classes in Poplar Bluff and Piedmont.

The increase this year was one of the largest since the second year of operation of the college. The first classes at the college were in the summer of 1967, and enrollment that fall was understandably small.

Fall semester registration in 1967 was 487; in 1968 it was 780, and in 1969 it was 839.

This year's increase was due in some measure to new career programs, but it also indicates a greater attraction by Three Rivers Junior College to students intending to transfer to four-year colleges, said Jack D. Vincent, vice president and dean of the college.

THE PHANTOM by Falk & Berry

ALLEY OOP by V. T. Hamlin

BEETLE BAILEY by Mort Walker

THE PLATTERS, famed singing group, will be one of the headline acts at the big free entertainment show at the Mid-South Fair. They will perform in two shows at 3:30 and 7:30 p.m. in the Coliseum, Wednesday, Sept. 29. The original Alexander's Ragtime Band and television star Forrest Tucker will also be featured.

Jam-Packed Fair Will Open Friday

MEMPHIS - One newspaper would be hard pressed to contain in detail everything that is scheduled for the 1971 Mid-South Fair which goes to the post for the 115th time Friday.

The nine-day run is loaded with something for everyone in holding to the tradition that any fair is a family affair.

The fairgoers are looking for entertainment and they will find it in rich abundance as the fair's professional entertainment reads like a Whos Who in the world of music - Johnny Cash, Roy Clark, Robby Sherman, Bill Anderson, Jan Howard, The Platters, Forrest Tucker and a whole host of others.

Six performances of the World Championship Rodeo, running from opening Friday through Sunday will feature Clark who stars on TV's Hee Haw as a singer, clown, instrumentalist and generally a man of many talents. Clark will be ably abetted by many of the country's great cowboys riding, roping and bulldozing spirited rodeo stock.

Bill Anderson and the Po' Boys with Jan Howard, another of the big names in country music, will perform for one 5 p.m. show on Tuesday in the livestock arena. This is a free show, courtesy of Homelite Chain Saws.

The biggest free show of the nine-day fair comes on Wednesday with a Coliseum extravaganza of name talent for shows at 3:30 and 7:30 p.m. The array of professional entertainers include Forrest Tucker, star of movies, Tv (F Troop), nightclubs and the stage (The Music Man); the famed singing group, The Platters; the original Alexander's Ragtime Band and a wealth of supporting acts.

Approximately 20,000 free tickets will be distributed from information booths on the grounds — 10,000 before the 3:30 p.m. performance and the other 10,0000 night show tickets after the start of the afternoon show.

The big entertainment treat for the youngsters is set for Thursday when Bobby Sherman, whose credits include more than $20,000,000 in records sales, brings his show to the Coliseum for performances at 4:30 and 7:30 p.m.

The King of country music returns to the Mid-South Fair after a three-absence and that means the irrespressible Johnny Cash who is set for one show Friday at 8 p.m., followed by a 3:30 matinee and 8 o'clock evening show on the closing Saturday (Oct. 2). Cash packed his fans into the Coliseum for two shows at the 1968 Fair. With the Cash entourage will be wife June Carter, Mother Maybelle and the Carter Family, the gospel-singing Statler Brothers, The Tennessee Three and (Blue Suede Shoes) Carl Perkins.

Add to this topflight entertainment such free attractions as the Youth Talent Contest with twice-daily shows leading to the grand finals on Thursday (Sept. 30); the Railroad Raskals (marionettes); Medals the Klown, a strolling balloon blower who delights the kiddies; stiltwalker Harold Garraro; and the always-popular free circus with its many aerialists, sway pole artists and performing animals.

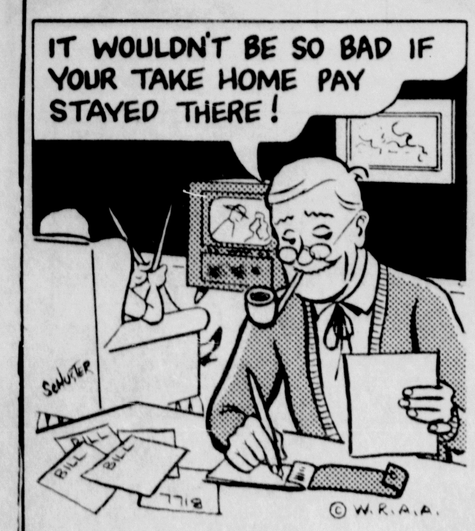

All the family gets another bonanza with the Petting Zoo, the Wildlife Gardens, the world's most controversial crime car plus many other things in more than 300 free acts. A must stop is the return of the Drug Abuse Exhibit, again sponsored by Plough, Inc.

Heads of families can find unlimited enjoyment in multiple exhibits in the Family Living Center including the Craft Corner, cooking demonstrations, Home-A-Rama with the latest in home building products, Southern Railway's exhibit car on the latest devices in operating a modern railroad and 1972 model cars in at least eight lines in the Shelby Center.

The flower lover will find his cup of tea in the air-conditioned Horticulture Building with its beautiful and exotic floral and gardening arrangements. From at least 20 states will come prize animals and herds to compete for more than $75,000 in prize money in the Livestock Show.

The list of things to see is virtually endless but it all unfolds Friday at the 115th Mid-South Fair.

Danforth All But Rules Out House Race

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) - State Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth has all but ruled out any race on his part for a seat in the U.S. House of Representatives in 1972.

The possibility is almost zero, Danforth said while here for an address to a meeting of the College Republican Club Wednesday night.

"The decision will be whether to run for-election as attorney general or to return to private life," Danforth said, adding "I am leaning slight toward running for re-election."

In his address, Danforth called upon student voters in college towns to "calm the anxieties" of year-around residents."

"Residents of Columbia, Kirksville and Rolla, for example, cannot go home for summer vacations and graduate to another life. They must remain behind to live with the decisions which you, the student population, will have a hand in making," Danforth said.

Inserts Qualify For Tax Exemption

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Supplements inserted in newspapers, even though printed by some company other than the newspaper, qualify for the state sales tax exemption on newsprint, Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth said today.

He said each particular case would have to be considered in deciding whether a publication meets the qualifications for a newspaper.

Danforth supplied the legal opinion for Richard R. Nacy, general counsel for the state Department of Revenue.

"It has been authoritatively stated," Danforth told Nacy, "that in ordinary understanding a newspaper is a publication usually in sheet form intended for general circulation and published regularly, ordinarily at short intervals, containing intelligence of current events and news of general interest."

He quoted from a 1969 legal opinion covering the same field of legal interpretation. It said:

"The plain meaning of the (sales tax) exemption provision is that newsprint that is used to publish newspapers is exempt from taxation. The remainder of the provision merely states the newspapers which qualify for the exemption, that is newspapaers which are published for dissemination of news to the general public. Therefore any such 'newspaper' qualifies for the exemption.

"It is common knowledge, as well as being defined so in Webster's, that a newspaper, besides printing news, also contains non-news information, such as comics, editorials, columns, historical notes and miscellaneous items such as crossword puzzles, etc., as well as advertising. The fact remains that is a 'newspaper' that is published, in spite of the fact that the 'newsapaer' contains such non-news items."

The attorney general then said:

"considering the foregoing authority, it is our view that supplements incorporated into news editions of newspapers and distributed to subscribers and customers as a part of such newspapers are an integral part of the newspapers and as such the 'newsprint' used in connection with printing the same is covered by the exemption contained in section 144.030, 3(7), Revised Statutes of Missouri 1969, whether or not the supplement is printed by the person or firm publishing the newspaper."

Presidency Goal Set By Harris

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma announced today his candidacy for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, saying he will try to "call this country back to the greatness that is in us."

"I intend to try to turn this country around before it's too late," the 40-year-old senator said as he became the second declared entry in a field of Democratic White House prospects.

Sen. Geore McGovern, DS.D., is the other announced candidate. Both are liberals.

Harris had been considered a probable presidential entry since July 16, when he announced he would not run again for the Senate but would instead explore the prospects for a White House race.

Since that time he has made campaign-style appearances in 19 states, concentrating most heavily on Florida, New Mexico and California, three presidential primary states around which his advance strategy has been fashioned.

"Most people don't believe that it makes much difference what politician is elected," Harris said. "They don't really believe things are going to change...

"I believe that a president can call this country back to the greatness that is in us," Harris said. "I mean to try."

Danforth Opposes Bet Proposal

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Atty. Gen. John Danforth says additional tax revenue from proposed pari-mutuel betting is not worth the risk of increased organized crime.

The issue is one of five state constitutional amendments to be decided in a special election Oct. 5.

In a broadcast interview Wednesday in St. Joseph, Danforth said legalized gambling would add only about one per cent of the total state revenue. He said projects of how much money would be generated are greatly exaggerated.

Danforth said he will campaign against the gambling amendment in visits next week in St. Joseph, Columbia, Springfield and St. Louis.

No Cause Found For Deer Deaths

KANSAS CITY (AP) - No cause has been found for the deaths of five white-tailed deer in the past week in Line Creek Park in Platte County, officials announced.

Eugene German, park supervisor, said he still is awaiting results of tests from the school of veternary medicine at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

German has expressed belief the deer may have died of blue tongue virus, a disease in which the animals die within 24 to 48 hours of extremely high fever.

Danforth All But Rules Out House Race

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) - State Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth has all but ruled out any race on his part for a seat in the U.S. House of Representatives in 1972.

The possibility is almost zero, Danforth said while here for an address to a meeting of the College Republican Club Wednesday night.

"The decision will be whether to run for-election as attorney general or to return to private life," Danforth said, adding "I am leaning slight toward running for re-election."

In his address, Danforth called upon student voters in college towns to "calm the anxieties" of year-around residents."

"Residents of Columbia, Kirksville and Rolla, for example, cannot go home for summer vacations and graduate to another life. They must remain behind to live with the decisions which you, the student population, will have a hand in making," Danforth said.

Inserts Qualify For Tax Exemption

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Supplements inserted in newspapers, even though printed by some company other than the newspaper, qualify for the state sales tax exemption on newsprint, Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth said today.

He said each particular case would have to be considered in deciding whether a publication meets the qualifications for a newspaper.

Danforth supplied the legal opinion for Richard R. Nacy, general counsel for the state Department of Revenue.

"It has been authoritatively stated," Danforth told Nacy, "that in ordinary understanding a newspaper is a publication usually in sheet form intended for general circulation and published regularly, ordinarily at short intervals, containing intelligence of current events and news of general interest."

He quoted from a 1969 legal opinion covering the same field of legal interpretation. It said:

"The plain meaning of the (sales tax) exemption provision is that newsprint that is used to publish newspapers is exempt from taxation. The remainder of the provision merely states the newspapers which qualify for the exemption, that is newspapaers which are published for dissemination of news to the general public. Therefore any such 'newspaper' qualifies for the exemption.

"It is common knowledge, as well as being defined so in Webster's, that a newspaper, besides printing news, also contains non-news information, such as comics, editorials, columns, historical notes and miscellaneous items such as crossword puzzles, etc., as well as advertising. The fact remains that is a 'newspaper' that is published, in spite of the fact that the 'newsapaer' contains such non-news items."

The attorney general then said:

"considering the foregoing authority, it is our view that supplements incorporated into news editions of newspapers and distributed to subscribers and customers as a part of such newspapers are an integral part of the newspapers and as such the 'newsprint' used in connection with printing the same is covered by the exemption contained in section 144.030, 3(7), Revised Statutes of Missouri 1969, whether or not the supplement is printed by the person or firm publishing the newspaper."

Presidency Goal Set By Harris

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma announced today his candidacy for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, saying he will try to "call this country back to the greatness that is in us."

"I intend to try to turn this country around before it's too late," the 40-year-old senator said as he became the second declared entry in a field of Democratic White House prospects.

Sen. Geore McGovern, DS.D., is the other announced candidate. Both are liberals.

Harris had been considered a probable presidential entry since July 16, when he announced he would not run again for the Senate but would instead explore the prospects for a White House race.

Since that time he has made campaign-style appearances in 19 states, concentrating most heavily on Florida, New Mexico and California, three presidential primary states around which his advance strategy has been fashioned.

"Most people don't believe that it makes much difference what politician is elected," Harris said. "They don't really believe things are going to change...

"I believe that a president can call this country back to the greatness that is in us," Harris said. "I mean to try."

Danforth Opposes Bet Proposal

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Atty. Gen. John Danforth says additional tax revenue from proposed pari-mutuel betting is not worth the risk of increased organized crime.

The issue is one of five state constitutional amendments to be decided in a special election Oct. 5.

In a broadcast interview Wednesday in St. Joseph, Danforth said legalized gambling would add only about one per cent of the total state revenue. He said projects of how much money would be generated are greatly exaggerated.

Danforth said he will campaign against the gambling amendment in visits next week in St. Joseph, Columbia, Springfield and St. Louis.

No Cause Found For Deer Deaths

KANSAS CITY (AP) - No cause has been found for the deaths of five white-tailed deer in the past week in Line Creek Park in Platte County, officials announced.

Eugene German, park supervisor, said he still is awaiting results of tests from the school of veternary medicine at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

German has expressed belief the deer may have died of blue tongue virus, a disease in which the animals die within 24 to 48 hours of extremely high fever.
